PRINCE OF WALES GOES TO RESCUE OF BATHER

HEROIC ACTION AT BIARRITZ
LARGE COMBERS KNOCK BOY UNCONSCIOUS
MOTHER'S SCREAM

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance 1894. Received, August 6, 9.33 a.m.)
Biarritz, Aug. 5.
THE PRINCE OF WALES RISKED HIS LIFE THIS AFTERNOON IN AN ATTEMPT TO SAVE THE LIFE OF A TWELVE-YEAR-OLD FRENCH BOY.
The Prince was sun-bathing on the well-known D'Amour Beach when the boy was knocked unconscious by a huge comber, which bowled him over, stunned him and carried him away.
The Prince plunged into the water without hesitation on hearing the boy's mother utter a piercing scream.

The Prince of Wales, who is spending a golfing holiday at Biarritz, yesterday assisted in the rescue of a young boy who was got into difficulties whilst bathing from one of the beaches there. Picture shows him in holiday attire.

DANGEROUS BEACH.
The child was actually rescued by a life-guard who was rowing a boat near the scene and was able to lift the boy from the sea while the Prince of Wales was swimming rapidly toward him. The sea at the Beach D'Amour is regarded as very dangerous. The Prince usually frequents the swimming-pool nearby, as his entourage insists that the undertow at the beach is highly perilous.—United Press.

FOUR YEARS' ARREARS OF PAY IN A LUMP SUM

Chicago School Teachers "Out of the Red"
(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 6, 8.25 a.m.)
Chicago, Aug. 5.
"We out of the red," is the most popular song among the school teachers of Chicago to-day following an announcement that within a week they may expect to be paid their arrears of salaries in a lump sum.

The total amount involved is no less than $25,447,240, which will be divided among slightly over 1,400 teachers. Some of them have as much as $30,000 to draw.
The teachers have been without pay for over four years, owing to the virtual bankruptcy of the city government.
Ready dreams of comparative affluence—although most of the teachers have heavy bills to pay, long credit having been extended to them by tradespeople—were made possible as a result of the approval by the Illinois Supreme Court of acceptance of a loan of the required sum by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

LOAN ON SCHOOL PROPERTY.
The R. F. C. is making the advance against the collateral of $30,000,000 of school property in the Chicago area.
All the back salaries will be paid in the course of the coming week, it is announced.—United Press.

FOOCHOW CANARD

NO WITHDRAWAL OF FOREIGNERS
LITTLE DANGER REMAINING

A strange report has reached London declaring that preparations are being made in Foochow for the withdrawal of all foreigners owing to the Communist menace.
There is, of course, no truth in the report. The situation in Foochow is quiet, the danger of a Communist invasion having been largely removed.
Latest reports indicate that the Communist force is splitting up into small parties, who are separating, apparently to prevent the possibility of a wholesale round-up.
REAR THREATENED.
Foochow, Aug. 5.
Some "Red" detachments are still holding out around Shukow where heavy fighting is in progress.
The main bodies of General Liu Wo-tung's Division are concentrating at Ko-tien, northwest of Shukow, and are ready to attack the rear of the "Reds." A report that the "Reds" once advanced to Peisha is authoritatively denied.—Central News.

CROOKED LAWYERS TO COME FIRST
(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 6, 9.33 a.m.)
Washington, Aug. 5.
Plans are rapidly being prepared by Federal agents for a great nationwide attack upon organised crime.
The chief focus of attack at the outset it is stated is likely to be the system of protection of criminals by crooked lawyers.
The Department of Justice officially announced to-day that it is now developing its nationwide campaign against lawyers who are allied to gangsters and bands of racketeers.
This is the first stage in the anti-crime drive which is scheduled to gain its full force during the coming winter.—United Press.

The outlying districts of Harbin are flooded as the result of a sharp rise for the second time this season of the Sungari River.
Rescue launches are busy in rescuing marooned victims and picking up corpses. The rush of the flood waters into the villages along the Sungari River was so sudden that it is feared that many inhabitants were drowned.—Central News.

HERR HITLER'S HOROSCOPE

DOOMED TO FALL SHORTLY
ACCORDING TO ASTROLOGERS
(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 6, 9.33 a.m.)
Chicago, Aug. 5.
The early fall of Herr Hitler from his high eminence in world politics was predicted to-day at the annual convention of the National Astrologers of America.
No hint was given regarding exactly when the collapse of his power might be expected, by Dr. Henry Cornon, the noted New York astrologer, declared that Herr Hitler's horoscope left no doubt that he is doomed.
Dr. Cornon placed Hitler's horoscope in the same classification as those of Mr. Samuel Insull, dethroned Utilities Chief, Mr. Herbert Hoover, the ex-President, Marc Anthony, and Dillinger!
He also said that all countries in the world with the exception of Russia will face periods of great internal unrest.—United Press.

PARSED TO MAINTAIN ORDER THROUGHOUT GERMANY

On August 1, Herr Hitler received General Frisch, Reichswehr and von Blomberg at the Chancellery.

STRANGE HITLER STORY

ALLEGED FACTS BEHIND ACCESSION TO NEW HIGH OFFICE
SECRET NAZI MEETING
PARIS, AUGUST 5.
A DRAMATIC AND AVOWEDLY AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF INTRIGUE AND COUNTER-MEASURE THAT PRE-CEDED HERR HITLER'S ACCESSION TO THE PRESIDENCY IS PUBLISHED IN THE PARIS SOIR.

It is alleged that President Hindenburg left a political testament recommending a member of the Hohenzollern family for the Presidency, but that Hitler got round it after coming to an arrangement with the leaders of the Army.
The story emanates from the Prague correspondent of the Paris Soir, who states that Herr Hitler first decided to become Reichsfuehrer without consulting the Reichswehr chiefs, but ended by concluding an "irritable Treaty of Alliance" with them.

PRES. HINDENBURG'S PROPOSAL IGNORED?

According to the report, fairly confident information reached the Nazi leaders on the night of July 30 that President Hindenburg's condition was rapidly worsening and that the aged President could not be expected to live for many days.
A secret meeting was called by Herr Hitler, who presided, those attending including, among a few other trusted associates, General Goerring, Dr. Frick, Herr Hutze, the new chief of staff of the Storm Troops, and Dr. Himmler.
At this meeting, the report declares, it was decided to settle the question of von Hindenburg's successor on their own initiative.
General Goerring, in the course of the discussion, said that the secret police had reported that President Hindenburg had drawn up a political testament recommending a Hohenzollern for the Presidency, adding that a copy of Pres. Hindenburg's report had been sent to Doorn secretly.
Goering also suggested that a copy of the original text was in the possession of an old friend of President Hindenburg, namely, General Oldenburg-Januschau.
Hitler, however, declared: "I know how to muzzle him!"
Finally, measures were prepared to maintain order throughout Germany, with the Brown Shirt Army ready to take action at the slightest sign of alarm.

ELECTION WORRIES

ROOSEVELT'S POPULARITY SAID TO BE WANING IN NORTH-WEST
(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 6, 8.25 a.m.)
New York, Aug. 5.
Somewhat disturbing political developments in the last few weeks are causing Administration supporters to examine prospects in the November election much anxiously than their professions of confidence would seem to justify.
The Postmaster-General, Mr. James A. Farley, said to-day that he believes every State west of the Mississippi will be safely Democratic in the forthcoming elections.
Senator Davis, on his return from a tour of the North-West States, however, expressed the opinion that there has been a distinct, if slight, decline in President Roosevelt's popularity. He anticipates that the Republicans will gain seats both in the Senate and the House of Representatives.

HER lips are neither a streak of paint nor a faded line. Instead, she accentuates her mouth with a lipstick that gives the natural youthful glow that men admire without that painted look. Only Tangee can do this because only Tangee contains the magic color-change principle that makes it intensify natural coloring.

In the stick Tangee looks orange. But put it on and notice how it changes to your natural shade of rose! It becomes a very pair of you, instead of a greasy coating, hence is longer-lasting than ordinary "paint" lipstick.

Tangee's special cream base soothes and softens lips. No drying, no cracking, no chapping. Also in Theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

PAINTED—Don't risk this faded look. It's evening and even don't like it.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

What Little Women Wear on Holiday

PRACTICAL PLAY CLOTHES MUST BE DURABLE ENOUGH TO WITHSTAND MANY LAUNDERINGS

For the long days of summer children require practical clothes that will live through many, many launderings. Play clothes must be especially tough to keep up with the youngster who may be walking fences one moment and turning handsprings the next.

In the sketch are three outfits for three ages. The youngest child (in the centre) wears a sun-nautical style. It is of white pique with red anchors and red buttons to fasten the ideas. Rope straps carry out the sea-going effect.

The overalls at the left of the sketch are of green corduroy with gold buttons fastening the straps and upper pocket flaps. Corduroy launders beautifully and requires no pressing.

The indolent young lady in the hammock wears a beruffled frock of dotted swiss in brown with white dots and white organdie trimming about the neck and sleeves. The gathered sounce hem and wide sash will add much to a young lady's holiday.

YOUR CHILDREN Must Be Taught To Work

By Olive Roberts Barton

Bruce Barton tells in a magazine article how he learned to make "2's" when he started to school. When, with much travail, he mastered the curly pig-tail, it was his first "mental victory." And he compares his pride of achievement to the newer methods of education in use that start out with play and leave effort for time to create in a sort of spontaneous combustion, so to speak.

To tell the truth, I am right with him on this question, "How and when will the children in the extreme type of experimental schools gain their 'mental victories'?" By playing and building, romping and visiting until effort to achieve bursts right out in an orgy of work?

I doubt it.

Duties to be Done

On this little ball on which we live, there is a joker in the deck, a bogey in the woodpile, and an ant in the honey. The word is "effort."

Each day there are mental and physical hurdles to jump. Each day we have to learn a new meaning of the words, "must be done."

No one knows the value of play with children better than I. It is particularly valuable in the early training of the young because through "play attitude" a dozen germs will be absorbed and retained.

Not only that but the desire to learn can best be aroused by gaining interest in the object to be studied, or the thing to be worked out. There is no objection on my part whatever to the plan of showing a child a real cow and then having him take a pencil and describe it instead of getting his knowledge from an illustration in a book—and no prejudice against a child playing store, making change, then putting down a problem in profit or loss on paper, because he has handled real apples and real money on the school counter.

On the contrary I think it a grand idea.

Preparing for the World

But here's the point. All through life he will have to do work he is NOT interested in. Every day he will have "must's" to lick without any preamble of interest. As long as he breathes, he will have routine, dry-as-dust labour, absolutely unemotional, heart-tearing jobs to do, unrelated to any play-attitude or spontaneous enthusiasm whatsoever.

This is why I believe the extremist school needs to have a care. Some such educators insist that this sense of responsibility comes later. When? Does the advent of adolescence bring a work obsession? If so, I have never seen it to happen. Almost the contrary. In fact, it is during these later years that fine early habits seem to lie dormant, to re-awaken in the twenties with a yawn and shake. Dream years don't contribute much to abstract effort. The truth is that young children do have to be taught to work and like it, before they are old enough to think too much about their hard lot.

I am for the progressive school, but it should recognize limits and anticipate need. The person who can't work until he is bursting with enthusiasm is like a sky-rocket in a store. Unless—unless some one gives him a push. He will never generate effort in himself.

Curves Are Back

By Alicia Hart

The flat-chested, boyish figure that was so popular during the ten years following the World War no longer is in vogue. Nowadays curves are fashionable. They're slender, well-rounded curves, of course, but they're certainly a far cry from that half-starved, skinny look that was once so desirable.

Remember that correct posture is the first step toward a well-rounded figure. You can't have a full chest unless you stand correctly with head up and chest held high. Stand before a full-length mirror and see if your stomach is pulled in, and chest thrown outward and up. If your chest persists in maintaining that sunken look, try some deep breathing exercises.

Stand with heels together, chest up and arms at your sides. Breathe in, raising your arms over your head as you fill your lungs. Then exhale—slowly—and lower the arms back to the starting position. Repeat ten times and then lie flat on the floor to do another breathing exercise.

Bend your knees, putting weight of the legs on the balls of the feet and making sure that the spinal column is flat against the floor. Pull the stomach muscles in as far as they'll go and elevate the chest. Now, keeping wrists on the floor, raise the arms high above the head as you inhale. Lower your arms when you exhale.

CHAPTER XXI

Jane tapped the letter she had been reading. There was only one important deal on hand and that could not be closed for another three weeks. It would be a good time to make the trip to Marburg.

While she was thinking it over Mrs. Andrews, her secretary, came in—a stoutish, competent widow who had endeared herself to Jane by her passion for detail, her imaginative vacancy and her super-respectability. Mrs. Andrews brought instant confidence to clients who hesitated before Jane's youth and good looks.

"Mr. Sears is on the phone," reported Mrs. Andrews. "He's a little tight, and of course he's begging you to hurry."

"I'll talk to him," said Jane, taking the phone. "Yes, Mr. Sears, this is Miss Terry. I'm so glad you called up. I've been after the title guaranty company this morning and they tell me they're pushing the search and we may be able to close a week ahead of time. That's fine, isn't it! But you'd better keep the reservations you have. There might be some hitch, though I don't anticipate anything. These forms have to be gone through. If we neglect them we might find ourselves tied up in the courts."

"Don't worry, you'll get plenty of the war before it's over. That's right, you keep in touch with me. No, I'm certain it hasn't leaked out. It'll take a pretty smart newspaper man to get hold of this transaction until you say the word. Now listen: I may have to go out of town for a few days but Mrs. Andrews will be right on the job and will telephone me instantly if I'm needed. The money'll be ready and waiting for you the moment we close. And anyway, you're all right, Mr. Sears. You've signed the contract of sale and you've accepted a payment, so you're bound. You can't be forced out of it. Your house is sold, no matter what your sister or your lawyers or anybody else tries to do."

She hung up the telephone with a sigh. "I've told him all that a dozen times a day ever since this deal started," she said. "Disgusting person! Just because he's Roland Carlin Sears and his papa and his grandpa and his great-grandpapa had a lot of money he thinks he can run the world in circles. I don't know whether he's worse drunk or sober. Wait, Mrs. Andrews. My aunt is sick and I ought to go to Marburg to see her. My feeling is that I'd better get it over and be back here in plenty of time before the Sears closing date comes along. I might even leave to-night."

"I'll see what accommodations I can get for you and if they're all right. Then I'll write your aunt and call your maid for your packing directions."

Mrs. Andrews reported that a compartment was bought for the express, that Miss Rosa Terry had been telegraphed to, and that Jane's maid was on the telephone.

"The black suitcase and the little fitted case," commanded Jane. "Put in the dark red cloth, the brown lace with the short sleeves, and the black satin with the gold embroidery, the black satin slippers with gold buckles and the brown slippers. See that all the toilet things are in the fitted case and my negligee and pajamas and those travelling slippers. Put in only my best underclothes, the French ones, and plenty of stockings and handkerchiefs and gloves. I'll wear my mink coat and carry my cloth one."

It might, she thought, turn warm and she would look ridiculous in fur. But if the weather should stay cold and stormy, she didn't want to miss the chance of showing off that beautiful dark mink coat in Marburg. She had chosen only her newest and most expensive dresses. They'd give Marburg something to look at and talk about. "I wouldn't go back there shabby," she thought, "not if I lost every penny of Aunt Rosa's money."

It was not until she was actually on the train that she had time to think about Marburg and it came to her overwhelmingly that she might, if she wished, see her child. She was not sure that she did wish it. Perhaps it might be better to avoid it. The memory of Amy's contempt came back, too, but it was not so serious by a hundred times as it had been at first. "Poor old sentimental Amy," thought Jane, "she was so furious with me. I hope she's over it by this time—I believe I'd like to see that child. It must be 2½ years old now, talks and walks, I suppose. And I don't even know what they named her. I don't know what she looks like."

There was no one to meet her at the train in the morning and she was glad of that. Much easier to take a taxi and rattle uptown without forced conversation, and with a chance to look at the old town and see how little it had changed. A few more automobiles and a new movie house seemed to be the only additions to the familiar scene. Fortunately it was still cold enough for the fur coat. The elms along the campus waved in a raw wind. Patches of snow lingered on the winter-dull grass. Evil, dark and troubled, met her at the door. Miss Rosa, she said, was feeling mighty low. The house was over-heated and there was a stuffy sickroom odour, faint, persistent. Otherwise all was the same; Jane might have stepped from the massive crowded well-kept rooms the day before. Time had stood still here.

Time had marched on with Miss Rosa. She clutched at Jane and wept feebly. Her once solid and rosy flesh was flabby and waxen. Her carefully touched-up hair showed an inch of white against the scalp. But after her first tears she rallied. "I'm not really sick," she protested. "I had the flu and it left me low, that's all. And I've been so worried with that Jimmy Trainor, the young whipper-snapper. I'm so thankful you're here, Jane—you look fine. That's a pretty dress! You make me feel such a sight."

Jane's presence was a tonic. Almost at once Miss Rosa declared that she was going to get up and get her clothes on and go downstairs for lunch. After that they'd summon young Trainor and Jane should deal with him. In the meantime Jane might look at the suggestions young Trainor had made about Miss Rosa's affairs, to know what he'd been up to.

Jane found that she could not concentrate on young Trainor's letters. The wind, the tossing trees made her restless. She had better, she thought, go for a walk and blow away the fatigue of the train and the staleness of the house. She put on her hat and the fur coat and went out, walking up toward the college, feeling strange and alien in the unaltered scene. The gray stones of the buildings fused with the gray sky.

Students hurried back and forth along the paths with the effect they had always had of busy, aimless insects. Even the curtains at the windows of the president's house were the same dingy gold rep she and Amy had thought so ugly.

Now the name of Amy had intruded. It was impossible to walk without the sense of Amy's lost companionship. And swiftly, surely, Jane determined to go and see Amy, to see the child. "I want to know—I've got to know, about everything," she smiled a twisted, rueful smile. "Nobody can say I've not got nerve of one kind or another," she thought. "I'll go to see Amy to-morrow."

Now that her resolve was made to see Amy, she could not wait until the next day. In the late afternoon when Miss Rosa had retired for a rest before dinner, exhausted but exhilarated from witnessing Jane's rout of young Trainor, Jane put on her dark red dress, because she knew that was the most becoming thing she had with her. She loosened her hair a little around her face, rubbed her lips with scarlet, touched jacinth perfume behind her ears and, having examined the effect critically, liked it very much. There were so many reasons for being well dressed and beautiful for this visit. She meant to rehabilitate herself with Amy and she needed the confidence of looking well. And she might, she was almost sure to, see Howard.

A plan was beginning to stir in her head, a plan which would make her seem to them the person she constantly tried—and never quite succeeded—to seem—to herself, fine and sweet and disinterested, ready to make up for past omissions with generosity that would have a touch of nobility.

Yet for a moment, when Howard opened the door, and since there was no light in the hall and the late afternoon was dark, she waited doubtfully, she forgot her role. "You don't know me?" she said. "There came to her like the flick of a cinema the unhappy tremor of that July twilight of 1914 with Amy coming into her apartment, unsure in her recognition."

But in another instant she caught back her intended note. "I'm so glad to see you," she said, agreeably, conventionally. "Is Amy at home? I'm Jane Terry." She stepped in, offering her hand. He was, she thought, better looking than she had remembered. He was distinguished, notable.

To her relief he answered in her own line. "Of course! I couldn't see you in that dull light." He snapped on an overhead lantern, opened the living room door. "Come in, do. Amy's upstairs—she'll be down."

Jane made her entrance, talking on with determined ease. "I came rather suddenly because of Aunt Rosa. She's been so miserable

NEW LEGISLATION

ENTERTAINMENT HOUSES IN HONGKONG

Amplification and incorporation of regulations issued under the Places of Public Entertainment Ordinance has been brought into force by a new set of Regulations, which were issued in the Government Gazette on Saturday.

The new Regulations, in addition to grouping all previous regulations issued under this Ordinance, contains several important amendments, particularly in regard to cinematographic entertainment and the type of building to be used for all forms of entertainment.

Under Section 2 of the new Regulations it is necessary for every person desirous of obtaining authority to open any premises within the Colony for a public entertainment, by exhibiting a notice on the proposed site or upon any existing building, or by advertisement in four newspapers circulating in the Colony.

Lengthy passages in the new Regulations are devoted to fire hazards, and previous regulations regarding fire escapes, methods of prevention and safety screens are amplified.

Under the new Regulations scenery or stage properties shall not be kept on used on platforms or in any other parts of premises not provided with safety curtains, except with the consent of the Licensing Authority.

Entirely new regulations are being regarding sanitary provisions to be adopted at all public entertainment premises. Water closets and urinals must be provided, in accordance with the seating capacity of the theatre.

Ventilation.

New Regulations are issued regarding ventilation and cooling. Section 107 states that means of ventilation capable of providing a supply of outdoor air at the minimum rate of 1,000 cubic feet per occupant per hour shall be installed. The ventilation shall be effected by means of mechanical plant, capable of giving a positive supply, and shall be supplemented, if required by the authorities, by a mechanical means of exhaust ventilation. Several sections are devoted to cooling systems and plants.

The new Regulations are divided into eight parts, as under: Permanent and semi-permanent buildings specially designed as theatres and premises; special fire precautions relating to cinematograph operation; Other places of Public Entertainment; Places of Public Entertainment in New Territories; General Penalties and Powers of the Licensing Authority and Police; Censoring and Fees.

STORM HAVOC

FLOODS AFTER HEAT WAVE IN U.S.

New York, Aug. 4.
Storms and floods, following in the wake of one of the most disastrous heat waves in the history of the United States, are causing heavy loss of life and enormous damage to property.

The damage already exceeds many millions of dollars. All public supply services have been discontinued.

Bridgeport, New Jersey, was almost cut in half when the River Cohamsey, swollen by a cloud burst, carried away all the bridges and the ships at town wharves.

Several steamers were tossed on to the streets.

Fifteen were killed in storms in the neighbourhood of the Great Lakes.

INFLATION FEARED.

MORGENTHAU'S STATEMENT HAS RE-ACTION

London, Aug. 4.
The statement made by the Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, that the Administration is issuing silver certificates as rapidly as it is able, has aroused fears of currency inflation, resulting in the offering of dollars by gold countries, especially France, on London and New York markets.

City opinion is divided regarding the prospects of devaluation, some pointing out that they are unable to reconcile devaluation fears with the unconfident rumours now prevalent that gold held in London is being converted into dollars, while others hold the opinion that American inflation advocates will use the present dullness of business as a further backing for their demands for inflation.—Reuter.

CHRISTIANITY

BISHOP HALL SPEAKS ON ITS CHALLENGE

"Help us not to make our services more attractive, not to cheapen and popularise the worship of the living God, but rather to demand of you, with the sternness of our ministry demands, a surrender of your whole being in willing service and obedience to God," said the Right Rev. R. O. Hall, Bishop of Hongkong, addressing a mass gathering at the united open-air service of the Dr. Robert Morrison Centenary at Volunteer Headquarters yesterday evening.

The service, which was broadcast, was attended by His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, accompanied by Captain R. F. Walker, A. D. C.

The service was conducted by the Rev. E. G. Zewel in English, and in Chinese by the Rev. Leo Kau-yun. The united choir of St. John's Cathedral, St. Andrew's Church, Union Church, Methodist Church, Chinese Churches, were present, and the music was provided by the band of the South Wales Borderers.

After the reading of the scripture from Isaiah, Chapter 62, the Rev. Wong Oi-tong addressed the gathering in Chinese. He spoke of the life of Morrison, his work in China and the scope of his activities, and added that although Morrison is dead his work shall live forever and both Chinese and Europeans have good cause to remember him.

Following the singing of the hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign," the Bishop delivered his address, after which he pronounced the Benediction both in Chinese and English. The Doxology was then sung. A collection was taken during the service.

Bishop's Address.

In his address, Bishop Hall said: We Christians say Sunday by Sunday that we believe in the Communion of Saints; which translated into plain English means that we believe there is a family life of Christian folk with one another and with God, which goes on beyond the grave. Robert Morrison is still one with us in the living family of God. We are here tonight to help one another to realise that he and we are still one in our life and work, the family of God.

An old Chinese story tells of a man who set out to remove a mountain with a shovel. An ignorant foreigner said, "My dear fellow, if you work hard for the rest of your life you will have made only a scratch on the mountain side." "My life is nothing," said the Chinese, "but my life is a son and he will have a son and he will have a son." Such is the communion of saints.

Robert Morrison did his bit, others have done their bit, we must do ours. We are one family. They are not dead, those who have gone before, they are in another room working perhaps in other ways. The village maid was right who persisted, "We are seven." We are seven, in spite of the green moulds in the churchyard.

Morrison brought Christ to fulfil China's heritage, as He fulfilled the Jewish heritage. The Chinese and the Jews have one great thing in common—a strong family sense. But there is a difference in this Chinese sense of family and the Jewish sense of family. In China the father is less important than the family, like every other member he is the slave of the family as a whole. But among the Hebrews the father was the important, the family is an extension of his personality.

Family Worship.

So the religion of China has been family worship, of which the visible sign is ancestor worship, and the religion of the Jews has been the worship of an invisible Father God. Morrison's coming with the Christian gospel will mean in the end the substitution for the Chinese family sense of the communion of saints.

To most of us who are Western Christians the significance of a memorial of great men is that we may be inspired by their example. But that is not a Christian view. I believe those who are Chinese in their own habit of thought about family life will appreciate the Christian view. We are one with Robert Morrison in the communion of saints, which is the family of God. At Christmas time, at funerals, at weddings, we do homage to our own blood families. To-night we are gathered to do homage to that communion of saints, that family of God, of which by baptism we are made members.

In the heyday of the anti-Christian movement Christ was commonly called immoral, because he told men to hate their parents. It is true, Jesus broke from His own family, and bade others break from theirs, in order to join a new family, a family of God which He was founding. When we say "I believe in the Communion of Saints," we say that we believe in His right when He pointed to His disciples and said: "Those who do the will of God are my family."

Robert Morrison brings then to China the fulfilment of her old family sense and family worship by introducing her to a new and more profound family worship—a family found family worship—a family which is world-wide and a family Father, from whom the family derives its meaning and its being.

Only those who do the Father's will can be members of the Father's family, because the family is the instrument of the Father's will—that will which is making the world one in fact, as He has created it one in commerce and in common weal.

Trade as Friends.

There is a story that George Stephenson and Robert Morrison were playmates. George Stephenson presents all that is disciplined and

BOYS' SUMMER CAMP.

HEALTHFUL OUTING IN STANLEY RETREAT

The problem of how to spend part of the Summer holidays has been solved for 16 boys, in addition to four leaders, who have registered for the Boys' Summer Camp at Stanley under the supervision of the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

These boys will leave this morning for Stanley and will be assigned to different tents, under the leadership of an adult who will direct their activities and in fact be a "big brother" for the vacation.

The activities of the camp are varied and designed to meet the interest of all the campers. They take in such activities as nature study, astronomy, hiking, swimming, life-saving instruction, camp crafts, camp fires, sanitation, and athletics. These activities are under leaders who have experience in their various fields.

The preparation of meals is in the hands of an experienced person and a well-balanced simple menu has been planned.

The feature of the camp will be the performing of camp duties by the boys themselves according to squads designated by tents. Each squad will have a turn at dish washing, cooking, wood-chopping, and so on.

For the benefit of friends and parents of the boys at camp, Wednesday has been designated as Visitors' Day at the camp.

Messrs. W. C. Young and Ho Tak On will see that the camp machinery functions smoothly.

STEAMER SEIZURE.

CONFISCATION OF MATCH CONSIGNMENT

Before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday, Mr. J. Barrow, Assistant Superintendent of the Import and Export Department, made an application for the confiscation of 300 tins of matches found on board the steamer Taipeosok on April 3.

Mr. Barrow said that on April 3 he received notice in writing that these goods had been imported to the Colony on the steamer Bengal Maru on March 31, and that they had been transhipped into the steamer Taipeosok on April 2. He accordingly went on board the Taipeosok on the following day, and found the goods. The tins bore trade marks so nearly resembling the real trade marks of the Cathay Match Co. Ltd. calculated to deceive. He detained the goods, and no application had since been made for them.

Mr. Hamilton granted the application for confiscation.

courageous and inventive in the practical ministries which provide the world's bread and butter. Men of business or Government service stand to-night shoulder to shoulder with Morrison's missionary successors. We are here as he was to do the will of God. God has made the world such that if we trade as friends—each supplying the other's needs—we live and prosper. If not, if we seek at the cost of another people to make ourselves wealthy, we ruin ourselves as well as them.

Business men are ministers of bread and butter, and Government officers are ministers of that good order which makes the both other ministries possible. Robert Morrison's was primarily a ministry of the word. But let us gather from this service to-night something of the family sense that comes from the realisation of our differing parts in a common task; that we may live more fully in that communion of saints, which is the family of God.

Renew Reality.

And let us renew together that sense of the reality of the Father of the family, that conception of God that brought Morrison through uncounted difficulties in magnificent achievement.

They tell us, Christianity is dead, our Churches are dull and we must make our services more attractive. May I tell you a story from Northumbria—the little country town in which Morrison lived his first seven years? It was late in 1014 and a recruit was asked by a humorist and a recruit officer: what he would do if he met an enemy. "I would say to him," said the recruit, "fixing his bayonet, 'I would say to him 'Prepare to meet thy God.' We are here to-night to meet God and worship God. Morrison's challenge, Christianity's challenge, the Churches' challenge is the same. Prepare to meet thy God. Morrison's achievement is a witness to God, and to that discipline, that note of sternness by which all true men seek to be worthy of their calling.

Help us, then, brothers and sisters, help us who like Morrison are ministers first of all of the word of God, to witness first of all to Him, to the creator and maker of all things, to the Father, after whom all Fatherhood in heaven and earth is named, to the Divine spirit in whom all things live and move and have their being. And help us, not to make our services more attractive, not to cheapen and popularise the worship of the living God, but rather to demand of you with the sternness of ministry demands such a surrender of your whole being in willing service and obedience to God, that the Lord Jesus may reach His hand out to you too and say: "Who is my mother, my brother, my friend, my comrade? Even those who do the will of my Father who is in heaven."

MR. MacDONALD'S FUTURE

It is quite understandable that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's enforced absence from the seat of government at this juncture, by reason of health considerations, should arouse rumours of the possibility of his early retirement as Prime Minister. While it is not seriously suggested in responsible quarters that during the three months he is away his Conservative colleagues in the Cabinet would seek to increase the weight of their influence over governmental policy, it is none the less felt that in a Cabinet of such diverse political complexions, decisions may be taken which may make Mr. MacDonald's position as head of the Government a difficult one. This view has lent some colour to the suggestion that he might find it a convenient opportunity to retire if the hoped-for improvement in his health does not fully materialise by October. Although the Premier's personal views have suffered some rebuffs in recent Cabinet decisions—notably in the repeal of the land taxes originally sponsored by him as head of the last Labour Government—there is good reason to believe that his Conservative colleagues, though wielding the preponderant weight in the Cabinet, would think twice before embarking on a line of action which would render his position untenable. Foremost among these reasons is that the Conservative members of the Cabinet would hardly be willing to shoulder the onus of carrying through the India legislation advocated in the recent White Paper if the Government were divested of its national hue. If Mr. MacDonald were to resign, it is more than likely that Mr. J. H. Thomas and Lord Sankey, former members of the last Labour Government, would go with him. That would leave only Mr. Baldwin and Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for India, among the staunch supporters of the White Paper policy in the Cabinet, and would threaten a serious rift in the ranks of the Conservatives themselves. Another weighty reason ascribed for retaining Mr. MacDonald at the head of affairs is that a large-scale naval building programme by Great Britain is envisaged if Japanese demands for naval parity with Britain and the United States are maintained at the 1935 Conference. It is believed that the fulfilment of

NOTES OF THE DAY

WAR ON N.R.A.

Senator Borah's declaration of war upon the N.R.A. price-raising policy at Glens Ferry, Idaho, is certain to have important repercussions. The incident was trivial enough, as a superficially as the connection between the price of bread in Idaho and the November elections in the United States appears very remote. Nevertheless, it is there. The significance lies in the very definite indication that Senator Borah intends to throw in his lot with the opponents of the New Deal. The Glens Ferry episode translated into direct action, Mr. Borah's generalised criticisms of recent weeks.

BORAH'S INFLUENCE

No one can tell with any certainty what is going to take place in a national political campaign in the United States until he learns which way Senator Borah is going to jump. And it is a still more confounding task to try to anticipate the veteran politician's leap before he announces it. Now he has made it known that he intends to stand in criticism of the N.R.A. and A.A.A. and in opposition to the Roosevelt Administration's educational campaign to "sell" the New Deal to the voters. Senator Borah's influence does not arise from the number of colleagues or party followers he can command, but from a profound popular conviction among friends and opponents, that he is utterly sincere. It has long been known that he disagrees heartily with the crop reduction policies of Mr. Wallace and is intent on rooting monopolistic tendencies out of the N.R.A. But the liberalism which eventually separated him from President Hoover was assumed to have welded him to that idol of liberals, President Roosevelt.

THIRD PARTY?

Yet it appears there are different kinds of liberalism. Senator Borah seems likely to take the field particularly in support of his fellow progressive Republicans or former Republicans, Senators La Follette, Kilmer Johnson and Cutting respectively. Yet these insurgents also have the benediction, expressed or implied, of President Roosevelt. So in Wisconsin, Mr. Borah, while denouncing the works of the Administration, will be joining forces with it to help elect a man who forswears both Democracy and Republicanism to launch a new party. In fact, his action might give considerable strength to the expectation of a real third party movement, knitting the insurgent Republican bloc to the so-called liberal forces in the Democratic Party and ultimately effecting a general realignment. It might do so if it did not at the same time show the centrifugal forces tending to throw apart any such organisation.

THREE KINDS

The difficulty about liberalism or progressivism is that when society has reached a given point there are at least three directions in which it can move, as compared to the one course by which it got there. For example, there is the liberal progressivism of trust-busters such as Senator Borah and Senator Nye, contrasted to the liberalism of the Recovery Administration, Gen. Hugh Johnson. And, third, there is the further liberal progressivism of the George N. Peek or the Milo Reno schools of agricultural relief.

STORMY WEATHER

Upton Sinclair concluded in his early novel, "The Jungle," that there are almost as many kinds of Socialism as there are Socialists. Similarly, the liberals who are continually called upon to form a third party are too likely to emulate the famous general who jumped on his horse and rode off in all directions. Meanwhile the conservatives have a much readier basis of unity in wanting merely to be let alone to stay where they are or—if reactionary—in recalling a roscate past to which they would like to return. But whatever may be the tactical advantages of complacency and the difficulties of insurgency, the declaration of purpose by Senator Borah points to stormy political weather. For it is not every one who has the faculty of making trouble for both liberals and conservatives at once.

such a programme would kill the hope of any further reduction in the British income-tax burden and would in all probability mean the reimposition of the sixpence in the pound lopped off by Mr. Chamberlain in this year's Budget. A decision of this nature would certainly be unpopular with the British taxpayer, and the Tories would have no desire to accept the full brunt of unpopularity for it as a purely Conservative measure.

LOCAL EX-SOLDIER'S
PLEA FOR PEACE

(CONTRIBUTED BY THE COLONEL)

TO what dream of calamity is humanity drifting? It is twenty years since some of us passed through an experience which we then thought was the greatest—but the last upheaval of its kind. We still observe the anniversary of the day when the ghastly slaughter ceased. Nineteen times have we paused for that Two Minutes' Silence in memory of the millions who died, and yet in spite of it all there are rumours and rumblings of war!

It was only in the last year of the Great War that effective warfare was waged from the air, and those who remember the utter horror of being machine-gunned and bombed from the heavens, wonder in dismay why something cannot be done to remove the dread which is steadily permeating the minds of war veterans.

PUNISHMENT FOR CRIME

The other day, the Bishop of Hongkong issued an appeal for the suspension of Capital Punishment. He is opposed (perhaps rightly) to the very thought of taking a life as a punishment for crime. Would that the leaders of the Churches throughout the world would inaugurate such a protest against war that humanity would be compelled to listen. If another war breaks out between the larger Powers, millions of innocent lives will be sacrificed, for from the heavens will rain wholesale death and destruction alike to combatants and non-combatants. There will be as many women and children slaughtered as members of the opposing forces, probably more. Is a protest not justified to save these lives?

A life as a punishment for crime! What punishment should there be for any individual of race who believe that war alone will solve international differences?

THE AIR MENACE

A future war would be fought from the standpoint that any means justifies the end, and there is little reason to doubt that not only would whole communities be drenched with poison gases and liquid fire, but that the germs of disease would be utilised as weapons of war.

The destruction of property alone is beyond comprehension, but it is certain destruction of millions of lives which is surely of paramount importance. The stupendous strides made in aviation since the last war are sufficient to emphasise the menace which confronts civilisation—and yet there is no evidence that the horror of it all is fully appreciated. The fear and dread certainly are appreciated, and yet nations drift on and on, bickering and building.

It surely cannot be that the new generations are unable to gauge the means of universal destruction which exist? I should that cinema pictures existed showing and sounding the utter hopelessness and agony of war. The impression is so indelibly stamped on some of our memories that we still dream those ghastly scenes over again—and awaken in a cold sweat only to realise that such bloody chaos may be repeated a thousandfold.

It cannot be that it is merely a case of the majority of humans being so blind that they will not see. Cannot Christianity make them see?

SUNBATHING WITHOUT TEARS

By DOUGLAS COMPTON-JAMES.

IF sunlight were sold in bottles, the bottles would have to be blue—because sunlight is strong medicine. Doctors are continually warning the public that too much sunlight can be harmful.

This general statement is perhaps not very helpful. Holiday-makers engaged in the pleasant idleness of acquiring a healthy-looking coat of tan in the short time at their disposal want more detail. They want at least an approximate idea of the amount of sunlight they and their children can absorb with safety—if not with absolute comfort.

The first principle of safe sunbathing is that blondes are far more susceptible to sunlight than brunettes. Not only have blondes less pigment, they also tend to possess thinner skins containing less oil. On all three counts, blondes burn much more quickly than brunettes. You will probably have noticed that fair people reddened under exposure to the sun, whereas dark people begin to tan at once.

The time of day is an important factor in sunbathing. The actinic rays responsible for sunburn are at their strongest between 12 noon and 4 p.m. At any other period of the day it is almost impossible for a normal person to get seriously burnt by the sun, although a very fair child might suffer from exposure outside the peak period.

Situation is another important factor. The actinic rays are capable of reflection. On a sandy beach or on water a severe sunburn can be acquired much more quickly than on grass. Further, at high altitudes the actinic rays are more powerful than they are at sea level. In the icy-cold air of a snowy mountain summit it is only too easy to get badly sunburnt. Those who spend their holidays in high places are apt to be deceived by the coolness of the atmosphere, with decidedly unpleasant results.

A severe sunburn requires medical attention. When the exposure has been prolonged (in relation to the susceptibility of the individual) inflammation of the skin is set up and there are the usual accompaniments of inflammation, heat, and swelling. Quite apart from the acute discomfort, there is usually some degree of fever and there is always the possibility of a secondary infection of the inflamed tissues.

No one wants to spoil a holiday in this way, but sunlight is deceptive; it has a delayed action. The full physical effects of an over-exposure do not make themselves felt until some hours

The Very Idea!
HANGMEN AND HOLDS

By George

THE arrival of another Bank Holiday is the signal for an extra day's work for us whilst the idling masses chew spearmint in their matchboxes or languish in the embrace of the jelly-fish.

Nowadays we never bank on a holiday (or for that matter at all) but just carry on with that spirit of quiet phlegm and bulldoggedness which has got England into the mess she is in today.

And where is she to-day?

We ask you?

Even the maps don't help us now that we have extended our frontiers to the Rhine. Personally we think that as long as the lads continue to bring home the bacon we can dispense with the mind.

What next? China may soon be including Manchukuo in her own territory if we allow this spirit of fun to persist. And where will the Japanese be then?

Spooking geographically, it's surely very hard to see, how any one can say who is, where, and what or who he is, when boundaries are changing every day.

But speaking confidentially like, if you should care to take a hike, across some other frontiers, a passport seems of little use, the latest map would cook your goose, and drown your joys in tears.

Fortunately no nation can extend its boundaries more than 25,000 miles, all round so we can see an early end to this new competition. In the meantime, householders are advised to keep their fences in good repair and to live up to the spirit as well as the word of Section 4, par. 3, of Ordinance No. 33, of 1843.

Correspondence

Dear George,

As a hangman of some merit and as one who takes a pride in his work, I trust you will not grudge me this space to protest against the proposed commutation of the death sentence. The trade depression must indeed be general when it comes to cutting bank clerks' salaries and robbing the hangman of his living. I shall soon be doing nothing but killing time which hangs heavy on my hands as it is. The trade is not what it used to be. I can remember when the profession used to be an ever open door but it is so slack now that many a member has forgotten how to tie a decent knot. Trusting that I shall have the pleasure of seeing you some time.

Yours faithfully,
Harry Longdrop.

Dear Harry,

The fate of your unfortunate profession appears to be hanging by a thread. You will have to tread warily or there will be bad news for you. Trusting that I shall not have the pleasure of seeing you for some time.

Yours truly,
George.

TELEGRAPH'S GAS EXPLOSION RELIEF FUND

OFFICIAL REPORT

ON DISTRIBUTION OF GRANTS

"DARBY & JOAN"

Below we give the official report, issued by the St. John Ambulance Brigade, of the manner in which the Telegraph Gasworks Disaster Relief Fund was administered. Full details of each case assisted have been supplied to this office and can be seen by any contributors interested.

The report, signed by Mrs. Langley, Hon. Corps Secretary of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, is as follows:

The Gasometer Relief Fund has now been distributed, final relief being paid for the burial of a woman who succumbed from the result of burns two weeks ago, and who had been given relief on several occasions.

After the first rush, Tuesdays and Fridays were set apart for paying relief money, and long before the appointed time numbers were waiting, some of them obviously cases, badly burned, and brought in chairs or even carried by relatives, others bearing scars of terrible burns, while some required careful scrutiny before being dealt with as they were doubtful cases.

Investigation proved that many of these had lost all their possessions, although they themselves were not injured.

MEDICAL TREATMENT.

It was found that many of the burnt cases had not been to hospital, and where they refused to go, the services of the Brigade doctor and dispenser were enlisted, so that they should have medical treatment daily until the burns were healed. This was done at the St. John dispensary which supplies the New Territories Benevolent branch with medicines. One old woman who badly burnt in the head came to the office this week to express her gratitude for the relief given, medical and financial.

The time and patience taken in examining each case were exhausting as we were paying out public money which was entrusted to us, and if we suspected a doubtful case a St. John Brigade member was sent to investigate before we paid relief. With the exception of the last day of reckoning, when three sturdy, fat women with a young expectant mother who had only lost her clothing, and who had all been previously compensated, demanded more money and unseemingly themselves in chairs saying they were not going unless given more, and three sailors who were quickly dispersed, the cases were very genuine and most pathetic. The three women were eventually persuaded to leave, amidst general laughter.

"AN ILL WIND."

One heard tales of long unemployment, many of these people were formerly employed at the West Point Hotel as lift attendants, amblers, cooks, etc., but the closure of these places threw them out of employment, so the fire was "all ill wind," as the explosion granted temporary financial relief. Others had lost husbands, wives, children, or other near relatives and in one case there were only a woman and two children left out of a family of 12. Tragedy stalked in their faces.

One old man of 85 came with his son and small grandchild, the latter bearing scars on his legs and arms; the mother was in hospital, but the old man's chief concern was for the child, although they had lost all their possessions. The last day he came he brought his old wife of 73 and as I paid them the final instalment I felt compelled to add, extra, for they reminded me of Chevalier's "Darby and Joan"—they were such an appealing old pair and so cheery in spite of it all.

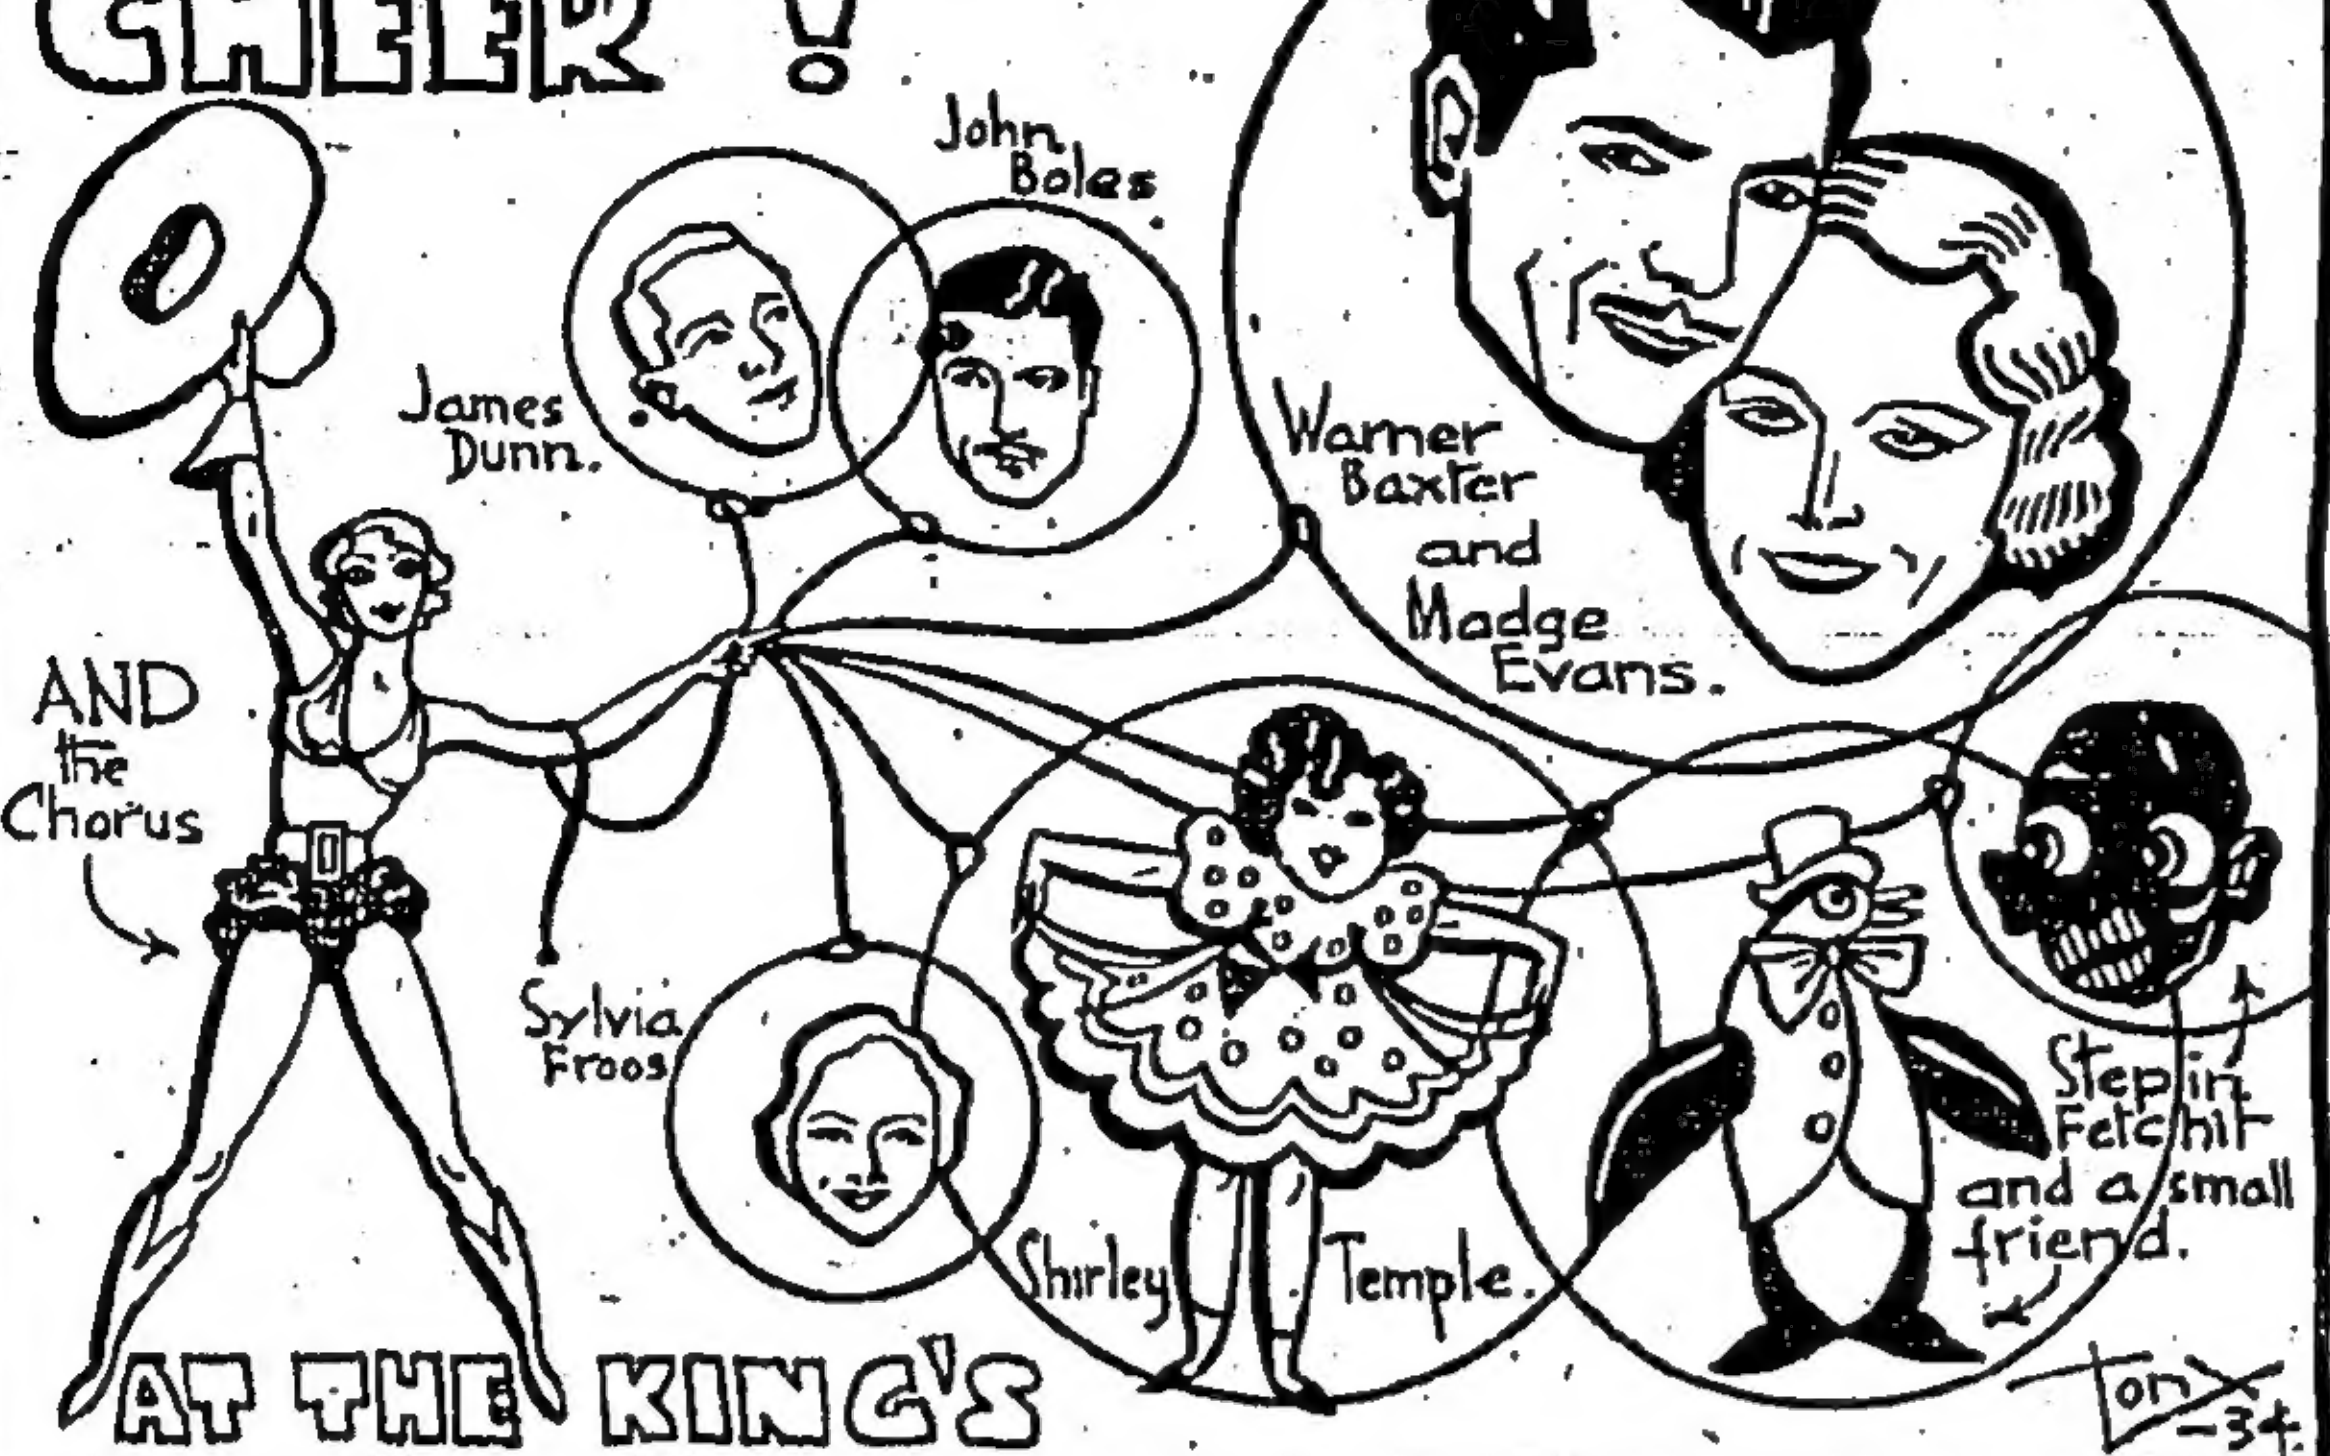

TYPICAL CASES.

The following typical cases will show how the funds were distributed:

Leung E-mui.—Husband, a master shoe-maker, with his mother, three children, and three foks, were burnt to death. Widow set up in business. The machine, leather, tools, and rent were paid for her and allowances given to two surviving foks. She has to report any change of address.

Wai Sai-mui.—Husband and son killed in the fire. She and her baby badly burned. After discharge from hospital she was given a hawk's licence and money with which to buy flowers. She and her baby came for daily dressings and a weekly allowance.

STAND UP AND CHEER!

A NEW AMERICA

SENATOR'S TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

Washington, Aug. 5. President Roosevelt motored to inspect the Grand Coulee Dam which his administration is building. He was greeted by a crowd of 30,000, including fifty blanketed Indians.

Senator C. C. Dill, introducing the President, said: "He is building a new America, in which we will all have a more abundant life." President Roosevelt said he was spending most money on the coast, because most of the natural resources were centered there. This policy would benefit the rest of the nation, because people from the densely populated areas would move out to the coast, resulting in better living conditions and a wider distribution of the nation's resources.

President Roosevelt inter left for the East.—United Press.

TRAIN WRECKED

BANDIT OUTRAGE NEAR IMIENPO

Harbin, Aug. 5. Bandits wrecked another train 25 miles west of Imienpo to-day and opened a "scorched fire" on the crew. It was a work train, with several passenger coaches. The train's crew and all the passengers are missing. It is feared they have been kidnapped by the bandits.

A large section of the line had been removed by the bandits and the westbound train was badly wrecked. Five wagons were smashed to matchwood.

Loss of life, it is feared, must have been considerable.—Reuter.

was given until she was fit to work.

Cheung Kan, made, 65 years old—Son and grandchild burnt to death. He was granted a licence and set up with stock-in-trade in addition to money for clothing, etc.

POLICE HELP.

Through the kindness of the Police Department, many deserving cases have been granted licences, and stock, etc., has been paid out of the Relief Fund.

People who lost clothing, furniture, etc., were compensated, although those who had lost breadwinners as well as suffering material loss were paid more. This was done at intervals so as to prevent needless expenditure, and also to keep them in food, etc., until they had found something definitely to do, or somewhere to go.

Space forbids a detailed report, but the money has been paid out conscientiously, involving much care and thought. Details of all cases dealt with have been entered, and sent to the Hongkong Telegraph and Industrial Commercial Press.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

HONGKONG TRADE.

REPORTS BY IMPORTERS FOR PAST FORTNIGHT

The following reports have been supplied by importers to the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce:

Cotton piece goods and fancy cotton goods.—The following reports have been received:—

There is no change to report in the market which remains very quiet with prices tending weaker. The latest cotton prices to hand are those of the 2nd inst.—American Mid. "Spot" 7.064. Egyptian Sakel, F.G.F. "Spot" 8.61d.

Woolens.—Some small orders are reported to have been placed on certain tailoring lines otherwise the market is unchanged.

There has been a fair amount of enquiry for Artificial Silk Yarn and some sales are reported.

Waste Silk.—The market has kept fairly steady during the period under review and some purchases of New Style Opened No. 1 are reported at from $68.60 to $59.00. Other grades failed to attract buyers at present prices.

Metals.—Continental prices have advanced since last reporting. Market here is rather depressed. Stocks have, however, been reduced to a minimum and there should be some buying shortly.

Flour.—Market steady. Stock on hand totals 120,000 bags.

SUNBATHING WITHOUT TEARS

afterwards. As soon as the skin begins to feel hot it is time to take shelter from the sun.

Children should not be allowed to wear bathing suits for longer than half an hour during the active peak until their skins show signs of tanning. Then the period may be extended considerably from day to day, for the skin soon responds to the new conditions by drawing upon the body's reserves of pigment and interposing the granules in the form of a close-mesh screen of tan.

Safety first is the golden rule for sunbathing. Sunstroke, even of the mild type usual in England, is a most unpleasant experience and it nearly always leaves after-effects such as headaches and inability to bear heat.

Moreover, sunstroke begets a tendency towards further attacks.

WATER LEVELS.

FOR WEST, NORTH AND EAST RIVERS

The River Conservancy Commission for Kwangtung Province notifies that the height of water in English feet in the West, North and East Rivers is as follows:

Aug. 4, Aug. 5.
West River at Shihshing 26.2
North River at Tsing-yuen 7.0 8.4
North River at Sanahui 15.3 10.7
East River at Sheklung 3.0 4.3

Two cases of typhoid were reported to the local health authorities on Friday.

The inaugural meeting of the Hongkong Chung Hui Shing Kung Wui Young People's Fellowship will be held at the Cathedral Hall this evening at 7.30 p.m. The main object of the Fellowship is to band together the young people of the various congregations of the C.I.E.S.K.W. in Hongkong in worship and service. The meeting will be in Chinese.

are seeking re-nomination on Tuesday.

Senator Hatfield, champion of the protective tariff, is virtually certain to be renominated in West Virginia, in which event he will be a prominent national spokesman for the Republican Party in the autumn campaign.

At the last session of Congress he sharply criticised the "tariff bargaining" bill and denounced the projected United States-Colombian reciprocity treaty as favouring American capital abroad over that at home. He also started a campaign for further protection of the American chemical industry.

PATTERSON ATTACKS.

Senator Patterson, in speeches widely circulated by his party, has attacked the "New Deal" on all fronts, alleging that repeated congressional grants of power to the Executive have broken down traditional checks and balances in the United States system of representative government.

"While foreign trade should be developed wherever possible, it must not be at the expense of our home market, nor at the expense of American labour or American industry," he says.

"The American home market is the greatest in the world; it amounts to twice as much as all the foreign trade of all the nations of the world. Under such circumstances it is not downright folly to remove needed tariff bars and open this rich field to the cheap labour of other countries?"

STRENUOUS FIGHT.

While the renomination of both Hatfield and Patterson is believed certain, both face severe contests from Democratic adversaries in the 1932 national elections. In Missouri, Roosevelt polled 1,025,000 votes against 564,000 for Hoover. In West Virginia Roosevelt scored 405,000 against 330,000 for Hoover.

In Kansas local interest is most acute with respect to the gubernatorial contest. Governor Landon, Republican incumbent, is opposed for renomination by Dr. J. R. Brinkley, who has twice previously failed in picturesque triangular contests.

KANSAS INTEREST.

The Kansas delegation in the House of Representatives embraces four Republicans and three Democrats, all aspirants for renomination. The Democrats strenuously defend the "New Deal," while the Republicans are somewhat divided in their views, some being content to "go along" with presidential policies, while others attack particular phases, as for example policies of the Farm Credit Administration.

Kansas in 1932 presented one of the closest presidential contests among any of the more populous states of the Union. Roosevelt carried the state by 424,000 votes against 349,000 for Hoover. In 1928, Hoover had 513,000 against 193,000 for Al Smith. The state is famous for political "upsets" and will be watched closely in November.—United Press.

Examinations in various commercial subjects conducted by the Institute of Commerce, Heather, England, were held at its local examination centre, the Commercial Institute, Shelley Street, yesterday. Messrs. E. Hawking, K. M. Au, and H. K. Yew, F.C.I.T. Dipl. C.I. (members of the local Examination Committee) supervised the examinations. Worked papers were immediately sealed and mailed to England for correction. Twenty-nine students of the Commercial Institute and four self-study candidates sat for the examinations.

REMOTE CONTROL

PILOTS NOT NECESSARY IN AEROPLANES

Paris, Aug. 4.

An invention making the work of a pilot almost automatic, so that a child could land an aeroplane, was to-day placed at the disposal of French aviation by four professors.

It is stated the invention has been subjected to the most exacting tests. A pilot need only press different buttons in order to take off, fly horizontally, turn around and land.

During its tests, the apparatus functioned perfectly on all types of aeroplanes. It is believed that planes will now be able to take off and land without pilots, being controlled solely by radio.—Reuter Special.

WORLD UNREST

EVIDENCE OF ANGLO-U.S. CO-OPERATION

Washington, Aug. 5.

Paris reports of Anglo-American pacific discussions were referred to the State Department yesterday, but official knowledge of the discussions was denied.

The Navy Department declined to comment on the reports. High circles, however, regard the reports as fresh evidence of growing Anglo-American sympathy in the face of world unrest.

All authorities are agreed that there "probably never" will be a direct governmental agreement, but official knowledge of the discussions was denied.

REVOLUTIONARY TENNIS CHANGE PROPOSED

ELIMINATION OF THE FOOT FAULT

RE-ADJUSTMENT OF SERVICE WILL BE NECESSARY

(By "Veritas").

The elimination of the foot-fault in tennis is contemplated by the proposal of the International Lawn Tennis Federation made known at the end of last week. A special committee appointed to investigate the foot-fault rule has put forward a recommendation that an auxiliary line behind the baseline be added to the court markings from which the service shall be delivered.

The proposal is almost certain to meet with considerable opposition. The adoption of the proposal means players will be confronted with the problem of re-adjusting their service deliveries—an unpleasant prospect and one which is bound to be resented.

Agitators for an amended foot-fault rule probably never bargained for such a sweeping change; nevertheless it cannot come with complete surprise, for the committee, when appointed, demanded and received the widest powers of reference, thus indicating the likelihood of a revolutionary proposal. South Africa were the prime movers in this agitation for a modification of the foot-fault rule, and at the annual meeting of the Federation, Mr. A. H. Sabelli, on their behalf, presented a proposal for such a modification, substituting for the existing rule 7, the following:—

The server shall, throughout the delivery of the service keep both feet behind (i.e. further from the net than) the baseline.

SIMPLICITY NEEDED.

Mr. Sabelli said the object of the South African Lawn Tennis Union was to obtain a greater measure of simplicity in a rule which was very cumbersome and extremely difficult of administration, even by linesmen appointed especially for the purpose. This view was supported by other delegates.

It was finally decided that the question of the Foot-Fault Rule should be submitted to a special committee, constituted as follows:—Monsieur Rene Lacoste (France), Dr. H. O. Brehms (Germany), Mr. P. H. Stevens (Great Britain), Mr. T. B. Barker (South Africa) and a delegate to be nominated by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The meeting further agreed to give the committee the widest powers of reference so that they could report to the meeting in 1935 as to whether the existing Rule should be continued, or whether some alterations were desirable.

NO ALTERNATIVE.

If the cable received in Hong-kong fully reveals the committee's proposal, it would appear that no alternative is to be offered the player. He cannot, apparently, adhere to his present method of serving and run the risk of being foot-faulted. He will have to take up his stance behind the auxiliary line and deliver his service from that position.

The idea, of course, goes much further than the amendment put forward by South Africa, which merely searched for a simplification of the existing rule. Quite a different situation is created by the I.L.T.F. scheme.

The proposal suggests that to thought has been given to the players, but that it is purely an effort to lighten the responsibility of linesmen. Unfortunately the new service rule must affect the mathematics of the game. The angle, trajectory, and speed of the ball after passing over the net and striking the service court from a service delivered 39 feet from the net must be different than when the delivery is made 41 feet from the net. The service must be more difficult and less effective, more especially in regard to a player who lacks inches.

SOME MERITS.

The difficulty may easily be overcome by the first class player. The average club exponent will be severely handicapped. Re-adjustment of strokes in tennis is always a tedious and hazardous business. It can easily undermine a player's whole game. Miss Betty Nuthall's attempt to cultivate an overhead service after years of underhand serving, and the consequent effect it had on her general play, is an excellent example.

The I.L.T.F. proposal, of course, has its merits. It will rid the game of foolish blunders on the part of linesmen; the player too has the relief of knowing that so long as he retains contact with the ground, there is no chance of him foot-faulting. It will allow him to concentrate solely on the stroke.

But behind it all one feels the committee have gone a little too far in their recommendation. One is inclined to suggest that the ordinary foot-fault (i.e., one foot passing over the service line before completion of the stroke)—is a contravention of the mechanics of the game; which has little or no effect on the subsequent play.

IMPRACTICABLE.

It is extremely difficult to prove that a player is given an advantage over his opponent by delivering a service a split second after his foot has crossed the baseline, providing he observes the other demands of the rule which requires that he shall maintain continuous contact with the ground, and shall not run or jump. The most important part of the foot-fault rule has always been ridiculous in practical demonstration. It has added a complexity to the game, all too unnecessary.

The chief demand of a good service should be for the server to be behind and with at least one foot, remain behind the service line, and for some part of his body to be in continuous contact with the ground until the completion of the stroke.

It was such a simplification of the foot-fault rule for which South Africa was searching. Contravention of either of these two regulations should constitute a fault service, and the rule could very well be left at this with no damage to the game.

Tennis is hide-bound with rules, all of which, in some form or another, are necessary. The foot-fault rule must be revised, but that its revision should require such a sacrifice on the part of the players seems unwarrantable.

Possibly it is not so simple as it appears, but players in general might welcome an alteration which requires only one foot being behind the baseline until time of contact. In this way the linesmen would be relieved of the onerous task of judging whether a foot has crossed the line before completion of the stroke, while the players will not be called upon to effect a somewhat drastic change in their service deliveries.

THE DAVIS CUP

Hungary, Holland & Poland Win

FINAL MATCHES

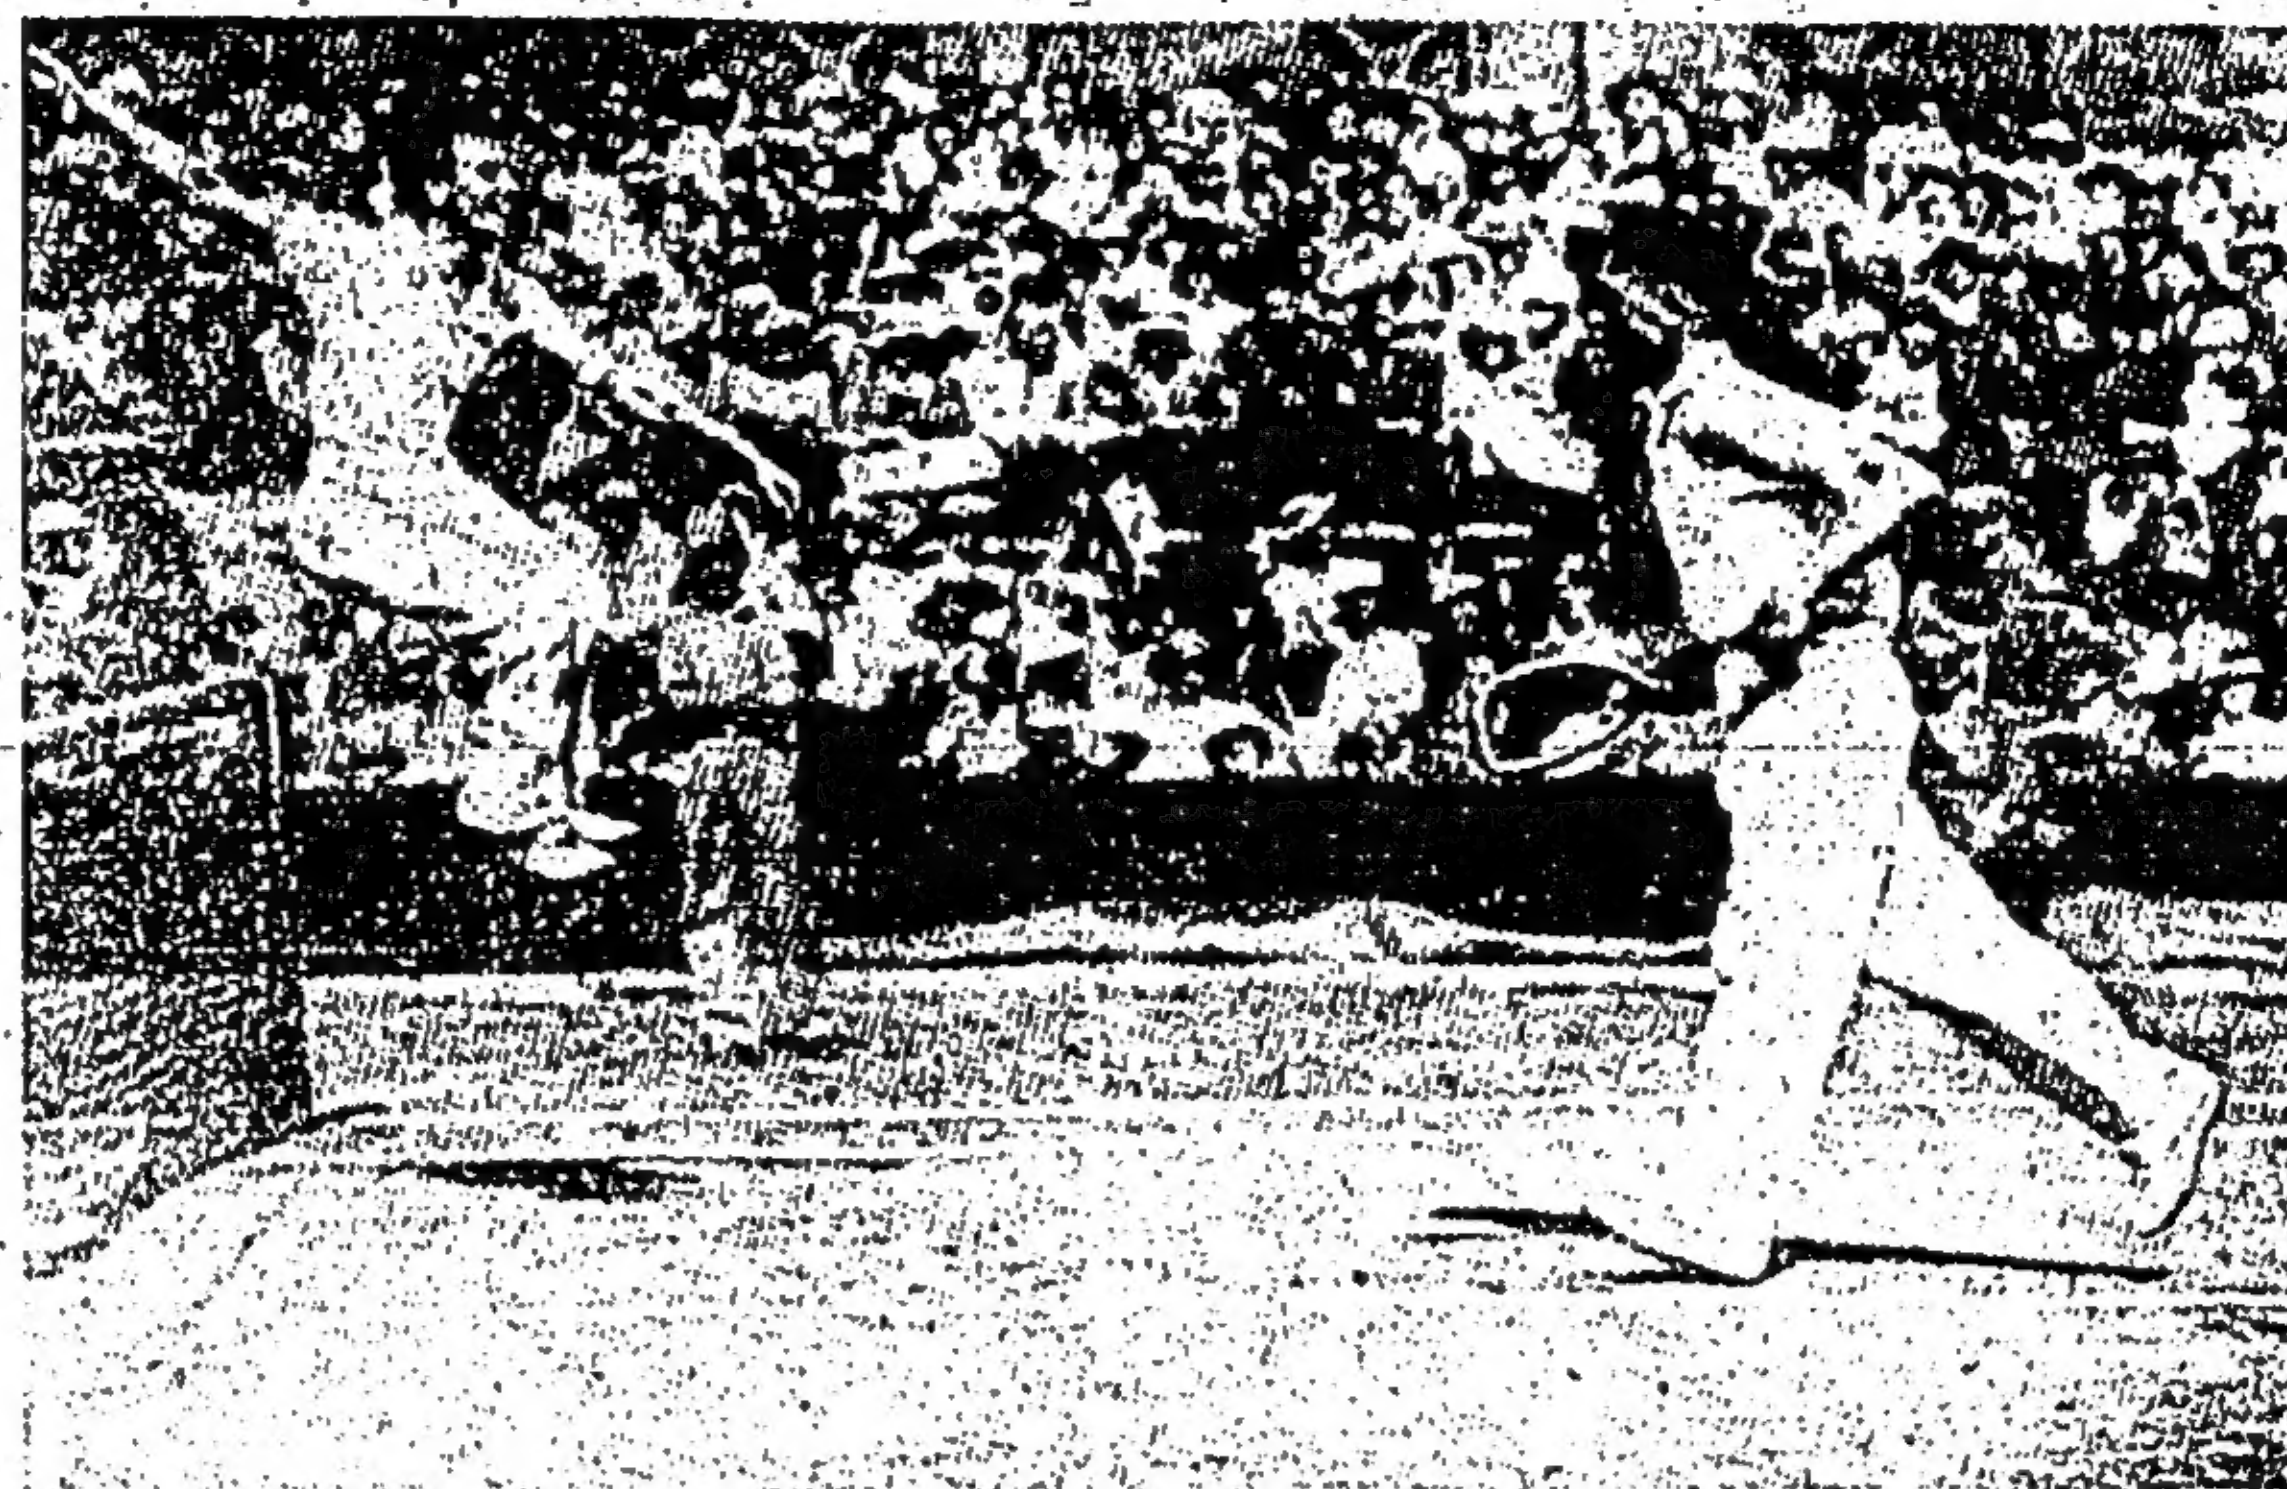

London, Aug. 5. Holland, Poland and Hungary have entered the third round of the 1935 qualifying competition of the Davis Cup as a result of to-day's matches.

At Tallinn, Poland made a clean sweep against Estonia, Tarlowksi and Tloczynski winning the remaining singles. Tarlowksi beat Puk 6-3, 6-4, 6-1, and Tloczynski overcame Lash 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

At Rotterdam, Holland beat Monaco by four rubbers to one, losing only the doubles. In the concluding singles, Wimmer beat Landau 6-4, 6-1, 6-4, and Grolton beat Gallepe 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 1-6, 6-4.

Hungary just managed to beat Norway at Budapest by the odd rubber. Hungary led by 2-1 when the contest was resumed yesterday, and Gabrovitz settled the issue with a decision against Smith, whom he beat 6-3, 7-5, 6-4. Hannes retaliated for Norway, beating Straub in the final match 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.—Router.

As a result of these matches, Holland will now meet either Sweden or Ireland. Poland will contest either Greece or Austria, and Hungary meets either Spain or Yugoslavia.

Petersen Parts With His Backers

£10,000 FROM 3 YEARS' FIGHT

Jack Petersen, the British heavy-weight boxing champion, and the syndicate of four who have been responsible for his rise from obscurity to stardom have parted company.

But if, privately, there are regrets at the severance, it was accomplished in a spirit so happy that the syndicate actually gave a luncheon to Petersen to mark the occasion.

They gave him a large gold cup, too—and thereby hangs a tale. It looked uncommonly like a cup which Petersen won in a championship battle against Pettifer in 1933 but did not get, and in quest of which he went to law.

Anyway, the syndicate paid a large sum for it. The contrast which the occasion presented was striking. On one side of the table sat Petersen with a cup probably worth £300, and £10,000 in his bank book—the result less than three years' fighting.

On the other side sat the four sportsmen who backed him in his 25-a-fight days, and who declare that their association with Petersen has brought them not a penny profit.

But Petersen, modest and unassuming as ever, appreciates what has been done for him and is happy that he has justified their faith in him.

He departed—a "free" man—with only "Pa" Petersen to help him in the direction of his future.

"Savages" At Wimbledon

CHATTERERS WHO ANNOY THE TENNIS FANS

You remember the stir there was when Sir Thomas Beecham turned in his conductor's seat at Covent Garden to rebuke those whose chattering marred the opera?

Well, there are some agonised lawn tennis "fans" who would be grateful for his intervention at Wimbledon. My impressions of a visit there might aptly be labelled "Conversation Piece," writes a Daily Mail correspondent. The real tennis enthusiasts are just as much distracted by extraneous noises as is the Wagnerian who at the opera suffers from whistlers, programme rustling, and seats banging.

It seems odd that spectators of a sport should be perturbed by the inattention of their neighbours, but that is the case at Wimbledon. Breathlessly they watch the finer points of the game—and seem to feel that the slightest rustle, the merest whisper, will disturb both their own understanding of what is going on and the tennis "stars" in their performances. Even the centre court is not free of the chatterers.

My "Conversation Piece" included a soprano-voiced blande, in flowered chiffon and a wide hat. Very shrilly she asked: "Oh, do you smoke those, my dear? I have mine specially made."—This at a critical stage of the play.

Again, this time a greying matron: "And if you could have heard her when I gave her notice!"

Discussions on the styles worn by the players, the way they do their hair, their tennis history, their private lives, loud recognition of celebrities in opposite stands—this is some of the disturbing gossip that makes up my "Conversation Piece."

WIMBLEDON WHO'S WHO

Splendid Booklet By Dunlop's

Biography is always fascinating reading, and this is especially true of the world's leading tennis players. Which is why "Wimbledon Who's Who and Tennis Celebrities," produced by the Dunlop Rubber Company is assured of a hearty welcome from followers of the game.

The brochure, which has arrived in the Colony, is a most complete and well compiled dossier of all the leading, and the somewhat lesser lights, who appear every year at the Wimbledon championships. The book supplies invaluable information concerning players, who in many instances are merely names to the average tennis "fan," while the better known players are fully portrayed.

Not only this, the book, divided into two parts, pays attention to national championships and Davis Cup records, and includes the rules of the game, regulations for conducting tournaments, charts for applying odds, and is delightfully illustrated.

The book is priced at one shilling, and no better value for such a modest outlay could be conceived.

The annual general meeting of the Mammal Hockey Tournament will be held in St. Andrew's Church Hall on Friday August at 5.30 p.m.

PITTSBURGH WIN TWICE

New York, Aug. 6.

Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers shared honours in a double header in major league baseball to-day, as did Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs. The Cubs, however, were blanked out in their first match by Dorringer.

The Giants took revenge for an earlier defeat by the Phillies, winning quite comfortably, while the Yankees also reversed the result of their Saturday's tie with the Athletics. Washington Senators and Boston, playing the only double header in the American League, finished all square. Bridges pitched effectively for Detroit Tigers to bank out Chicago.

INTERNATIONAL BOWLS

England, Portugal, And Switzerland Win.

The International Shield bowls matches reached the Second Round stage yesterday when fine weather and dried greens made for bowling of a high standard. Owing to the bereavement of one of the members of the Indian team, their match with Ireland was postponed.

Playing on the Grangeover green, the Swiss rink eliminated the Philippines from the competition by 26 shots to 18.

On the K.C.C. venue Scotland fell to Portugal by the easy margin of five shots, the score being 15-10.

England beat Malaya rather easily, the score of 39 to 9 representing the superiority of the winners, who took an early lead in the game.

FOOTBALL ON THE WAY: CLUBS PREPARING

BIG LEAGUES KICK OFF ON AUGUST 25

MANY IMPORTANT TRANSFERS NEGOTIATED

(Special to "Telegraph").

London, Aug. 5.

The Final Test must be played and won before the British sporting public begins to take a really serious interest in the coming soccer season, but the same is not true about players and team managers.

Most of the players reported at their clubs for duty last week and have already commenced a strenuous training, loosening up their muscles for the new season and studying patiently the suggestions of the coach.

Except for one or two instances in the Third Division, where some of the sides that did badly last year have practically made a clean sweep and are preparing to field almost entirely new teams, extraordinarily few changes have been made in club personnel during the close season, though it is possible that one or two transfers may be arranged as managers are confronted with problems of team building in the next two or three weeks of practice games.

BIGGEST CAPTURES.

Arsenal (as usual) and Aston Villa have made the biggest captures.

The Arsenal have paid large fees for a pair of half-backs who were the subject of a great deal of rival bidding, Crayston of Bradford and Copping of Leeds.

Aston Villa paid £11,000, the biggest fee on record, for Allen, Portsmouth's centre-half. And Portsmouth are well satisfied with the bargain. They have Salmond ready to step into Allen's shoes and many of their supporters consider him Allen's equal.

Sheffield Wednesday have experienced two losses that may prove serious. Blenkinsop, the most polished left-back in England, practically a fixture in the international side, has gone to Liverpool, and Leach, their famous centre-half, will be turning out for Newcastle. Andrew Cunningham, the Newcastle manager, is evidently determined that his side's stay in the Second Division will be as short as possible.

Luton's acquisition. Barkas, the Bradford City back, will be seen in Manchester City's colours this season.

Preston are strengthening their team for their new sphere and have signed on Critchley (Everton) and Butterworth (Blackpool). Most of the clubs in the junior divisions who did well last season are relying very much upon the same players. The outstanding acquisition is probably Luton's signature of Cook, Chesterfield's prolific goal-scorer.

Southend, where Davis Jack is playing the managerial role, will also take a lot of watching. Jackson (Stoke), Johnson (Oldham), Williams (Wednesday) are among Jack's new blood.

Fixtures for the first Saturday of the season, August 25, are as follows:

SOVIETS ENTHUSIASTICALLY ADOPT SOCCER

ENGLISH COACHES TO BE INVITED TO TAKE OVER POSTS

A new football regime has been launched in Russia. Hitherto Soviet soccer players have only been permitted to meet working-class teams, but the Supreme Council of Physical Education has decided to sacrifice its antipathy to bourgeois players and teams from capitalistic countries in the expressed hope of "attracting more people into sport and of improving the quality of the game."

Czechoslovakia's champion team has been invited to open Russia's international football programme. British coaches may be invited to go to Russia to teach soccer.

Visitors to Soviet Union cannot fail to observe that there is a general realisation, among those in control of the necessary utility for the practice of certain virtues hitherto scornfully labelled "bourgeois." The Kremlin has possibly considered sport altogether too much of a "gentleman's" relaxation for those who are so very busy building up a new order. But Russians are as human as everyone else, and "all work and no play" doesn't appeal to them quite as much as some of their leaders may consider desirable. Some of them have been known to mutter that it's all very well to encourage one's rest day, in usefully shovelling at a pile of dirt in the new Moscow Underground, but it might be amusing, just once, to bowl a cricket ball or kick a football for the sheer fun of it, rather than for the glory of the 2nd Five-Year Plan.

Official cognizance of this attitude has been taken by the revocation of decrees against cricket, the establishment typically of Soviet "Supreme Council for Physical Education" and the erection of a Central Sports Ground for the Moscow proletariat. The latter, still under the process of the city should be most impressive. When I visited it, it was occupied by soldiers drilling to a band, but doubtless, their time will come. The "Supreme Council" has great plans, afoot, which will introduce all forms of sports into the schools and factories.

In fact, the Soviet Government have been far too busy to attend to such luxuries up to the present. The sport which exists, with a watchful eye to the East, is purely practical. It is concentrated in a tremendous number of rifle clubs, which are attached to all factories. These are very popular, and the young worker desires, above all things, to acquire the social distinction of wearing a badge, red and silver, denoting his membership in one of these clubs. The membership is very large, and on any rest day hundreds of young men can be seen tramping through the streets en route to a day's practice in the open.

Every city possesses its "Park of Rest and Culture," which embraces provisions for a certain amount of informal sport, but the grounds are mostly devoted to amusements of a more mechanical nature—such as roundabouts, scenic railways, and slides on the various apparatuses used all over the world at all amusement centres. The proletariat enjoys them in Russia quite as much as any where else.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKETERS AND GATE RECEIPTS

NEW PROBLEM ARISES

The Effect Of Club Membership INVESTIGATIONS IN HAND

A novel financial problem has been raised in connection with the visit of the Australian Test cricketers.

The gate receipts at all matches are shared with the Australians on a fifty-fifty basis. Members of county clubs, of course, pay no gate money, so there is nothing to halve. It has been found in several places that there has been a surprising and sudden access of county club members shortly before the arrival of the Australians to play a match.

In consequence of this, the figures of membership, as compared with last year, are now being taken systematically at each ground where the Australians play.

At the end of the tour the results are to be examined with a view to proposals being made for a new arrangement for future series.

At places like the Oval and Nottingham, membership of the club not only confers certain privileges, but may also mean a smaller outlay than would be required to secure good seats for a Test match.

A NEW SYSTEM.

In Australia the ratio of club members to the number of spectators is considerably lower than in England.

It is probable that a definite ratio will be proposed when the England and Australian authorities discuss the results of the investigations now taking place.

The problem arises mostly in the case of Test matches at big Primo Carnera, with Mr. Leo Sae, his manager.

CARNERA'S £17,600

ALL INVOLVED IN CLAIMS

Primo Carnera, the giant Italian boxer, slowly recovering from the battering he recently received from Max Baer, the American, is ruefully contemplating his pocket-book, in which nothing intervenes between back and front.

The day before the fight £17,600 was paid into his account by Madison Square Garden Company, but there is an injunction against his withdrawing any of it. His manager, Louis B. Sorel, sold to him a 1,000-acre farm and a 100-roomed villa in Italy, and a house at Atlantic Beach, New Jersey. On these properties Carnera owes Sorel precisely £17,600.

Sorel's application to the courts to withdraw £14,600 from Carnera's bank credit is still pending, leaving £3,000 to satisfy the "heartbalm" judgment in favour of Miss Tersini, the London waitress. But even this residue of his bank account does not belong to Carnera, who finds to-day that all he can offer to Miss Tersini in satisfaction of her claims consists of some farming land in Italy.

centres, but at some of the smaller county grounds there have been as many as 2,000 members out of a total gate of about 5,000.

British Empire Athletics

BRILLIANT START MADE AT THE WHITE CITY

Impressive scenes marked the formal opening of the Empire Games, which commenced at the White City on Saturday. Nearly 600 athletes from 16 Dominions, wearing the coloured uniform of their respective countries, swore allegiance to the King-Emperor in the name of sport, amid scenes of imposing ceremonial very similar to those associated with the Olympic Games.

Several new British records were established on the first day of the meeting, the most outstanding being that put up by Metcalfe, of Australia for the Hop, Step and Jump.

London, Aug. 4. Twenty years ago to-day the Dominions gathered in the Mother Country swearing loyalty in time of war. To-day, 600 athletes from 16 Dominions collected in England in friendly rivalry and swore allegiance to the King-Emperor in the name of sport at the opening of the Empire Games. An impressive ceremony was presented when the athletes, wearing the coloured uniforms of their respective countries, knelt in unison to receive the King's message. The Lord Mayor of London, Sir Charles Collett, and Lord Londale, who inaugurated the festival Empire meeting at the Crystal Palace in the Coronation year, 1911, and who is now President of the Games, were first and England last.

The Lord Mayor declared the games open as the Union Jack was hoisted to the accompaniment of a fanfare of trumpets. Simultaneously, 50,000 pigeons, valued at £200,000, were released and whirled in a great cloud above the White City stadium. The oath was then sworn. Howland England's captain, with a flag in his left hand and his right arm raised, on behalf of all the athletes took the oath which was amplified by loud speakers.

The scene shifted this evening to Wembley Stadium where the opening ceremony at 7 p.m. precedes the swimming events.

RECORDS FALL.

The final of the 440 Yards Hurdles was won by F. A. R. Hunter (Scotland), his time being 55 1/2 secs., as compared with the world's record of 52.6 secs. and the British record of 53.6 secs.

Miss Lunn (England) won the Javelin Throw, with an effort of 105 ft. 7 1/2 ins.

Metcalfe (Australia) smashed the existing British record for the Hop, Step, and Jump, registering a distance of 61 ft. 3 1/4 ins., which is only three and a half inches short of the world's best mark.

MANILA READY FOR STAR BASEBALLERS

DIFFICULTY OF PITTING LOCAL TALENT AGAINST VISITORS

ALTERNATIVE SUGGESTION MADE

Manila, Aug. 4.

Followers of the national pastime in the Philippines are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the contemplated Far Eastern tour of major league baseball players in November, under the auspices of Mr. William Shibe, owner of the Philadelphia Athletics.

A $100,000 baseball stadium awaits the visit of the big-league in the Philippines. It was built from the proceeds of two sweepstakes authorized by the government. One of the five stadia which constitute Manila's newly-constructed $500,000 Rizal Memorial athletic development project, the ball diamond has been used on only one big occasion; the staging of the Tenth Far Eastern Championship Games.

RARE PRIVILEGE.

Not for many years have Manila's fans had the pleasure of watching a big-league team in action. The only American team to visit the Philippines recently was the Philadelphia Royal Giants, Negro ball players, who came to the Philippines in 1932 and 1933, and demonstrated drawing power.

Several interesting suggestions in connection with the prospective invasion of big league baseball have been made by local sportsmen. One is the switching of batteries, that is, major-league hurling and catching for the locals and local heaving and back-stopping for the invading crew.

The outcome of such an experiment might, as Jimmy Durante would say, have "gigantic" or "tremendous" possibilities, with the advantages probably in favour of the major leaguers, no matter how you look at it.

Accustomed to their own pitcher's offerings as a result of batting practice while enroute to Manila, big-league batsmen probably would welcome the suggestion with great glee.

WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN.

But it might not be so easy for them, should an intact local lineup face the invaders. Used to bullet-like offerings as a rule, major-league batters might literally break their backs swinging at balls delivered by lightweight Filipino pitchers with no more than 130 pounds of brawn or so behind their offerings.

Or, local ball players, with the confidence they would gain if they had an imported battery, might outdo themselves in hitting their own pitchers.

At any rate, whether Mr. Shibe's prodigies make the trip or not, Manila will have been the richer for the suggestions that have furnished many an interested—and sometimes heated—debate. —United Press.

TRADE MARK CASE.

INFRINGEMENT OF CONDENSED MILK MARKS

An alleged infringement of the trade mark of the Peacock Brand condensed milk, manufactured by the General Milk Company, Inc., of U.S.A., formed the subject of summons taken out against three firms for possession of the Peacock Brand milk, to which a false trade mark had been applied, and to which a false description had been applied, calculated to deceive.

The defendant firms were Central Store No. 64 Des Voeux Road, Central, the Yuen Chong Firm, No. 374 Queen's Road, Central, and the Ho Sai Hing Firm, No. 132 Queen's Road, East. The complainant was Mr. Jackson Chan, a salesman employed by Messrs. Cornell Bros., agents for the General Milk Company of U.S.A.

The case was heard before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning. Mr. H. C. Lee appeared for the complainant and Mr. W. R. Robinson for the Central Store. The other two firms were unrepresented.

The summons against the Ho Sai Hing Firm were adjourned sine die for the appearance of the master of the ship, which was the master of the Yuen Chong Firm. The firm admitted both summons, saying that he did not know the marks were infringements, and that he had given every assistance to the complainant.

Mr. Lee said that six tins were seized in this shop. The defendant had given certain information to the complainant which would be useful in tracing the original manufacturers of the marks.

Mr. Hamilton accordingly fined the defendant $1 and ordered him to pay $50 costs.

In the case against the Central Store, Detective Sergeant Fowle gave evidence of the seizure of 17 tins. Mr. Jackson Chan then stated that Messrs. Cornell Bros. were the sole agents for the General Milk Company of New York. The Peacock Brand condensed milk was one of their products, and the Peacock trade mark was registered. As a result of inquiries, witness said he had sworn information, and as a consequence, a warrant was taken out. On July 23, he went with the Police to the Central Store, and there a number of tins of milk were seized. In the genuine tins the spots on the peacock's tail were darker than in the forgeries. There was also a difference in the printing.

Replying to Mr. Robinson, witness said that he had asked the Central Store where they had bought the tins, and they had replied they had bought them outside.

Mr. Hamilton adjourned further hearing of the case until next Saturday morning.

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLY.

POLICE RAID MEETING AT WANCHAI TEA HOUSE

Trouble between sandalwood workers and lorry drivers led to a meeting at the Tak Hing tea-house at Wanchai on Friday night of about twenty sandalwood workers and lorry drivers belonging to the Yunnan and allied trades.

The meeting was for the purpose of making certain preparations, and before it closed there was nearly a fight. The Police got wind of the affair, and raided the tea-house before any disturbance could take place. Several arrests were made.

The sequel occurred at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning, when charges were preferred against nine men.

Mok Wai and Li Yung, sandalwood makers, Chan Wing, a rattle maker, and Chan Chan and Wong Hung, lorry drivers, were charged with unlawful assembly at the Tak Hing tea house. They pleaded not guilty, and hearing was fixed for 11.45 a.m. on August 7. Bail in $75 each was granted.

Leung Hon and Lau Wang, sandalwood makers, were charged with knowledge of an unlawful assembly, and Chan So, rattle maker, and Chan Yun-chun, broom maker, were charged with possession of eleven hammers and a file for an unlawful purpose. All defendants pleaded not guilty, and the hearing was fixed for the same time as the other defendants. Bail in $250 each was granted.

Det. Sergt. Fitches prosecuted.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

With five musical numbers definitely established as song-hits, the Fox musical production, "Stand Up And Cheer" now playing at the King's Theatre, takes its place as the outstanding contribution to the field of popular music. Divided into five musical extravaganzas, the film presents a song-hit for each one.

"Out Of Red" is said to take its place at the head of the list. It is sung by John Boles, "Aunt Jemima" of radio fame, and a chorus of Hollywood's most beautiful young women. It is a song blessed with the virtues of being topical, timely, catchy and lingering. The other songs, almost equally as attractive, are no less popular. "Baby Take A Bow" is sung by James Dunn, Shirley Temple, Fox Film's sensational four-year-old "find" and a specially selected chorus. "Our Last Night, Together" is presented by John Boles and Sylvia Froos, and "I'm Laughing" is contributed by Nick Forman, "Aunt Jemima" and Earl Dancer's chorus. "Broadway's Gone Hill Billy" is another hit offered by John Boles and "Aunt Jemima", now known as "Sylvia Froos". The songs were written by Lew Brown, one of the world's most successful creators of popular songs, in collaboration with Jay Gorney.

"Madame Spy"

The most exquisite screamer on the screen is the descriptive tag given to Fay Wray following her recent escape of horror pictures. Strangely enough Miss Wray's vociferous soprano is missing in "Madame Spy". Universal's intensely dramatic picture which comes to the King's Theatre, on Wednesday, with Astor opposite Miss Wray and Edward Arnold, John Miljan and Vince Barnett in featured supporting roles.

If versatility counts then Miss Wray should be an expert by now, for having started her screen career as a comedienne, she graduated to westerns and then became a star in feature productions. In one of her recent pictures, Miss Wray stepped out of the sweet and demure heroine type to enact the difficult role of a woman lawyer. Again in the "Bower" she donned a costume of the '90's and became the belle of the East Side of New York. She is one star whom Hollywood has not been able to "type". While her interest lies mainly in her screen work, Miss Wray finds time to devote to her home and her husband, the noted writer, John Monk Saunders. A splendid actress, with a horde of adoring fans, Miss Wray is as popular with everyone she has ever worked with because of her ever charming disposition and her excellent sense of humour.

"Jimmy And Sally"

A high pressure, sparkling press agent, adored by the dames but so sold on himself he tried to do tricks with live elephants... and his own pride. His girl stuck by him through thick and thin, even when he fell for the dancing sensation of Broadway's leading night club. And when he buzzed a keyhole radio announcer that his dancer was ga-ga over gangland's big shot, he put more than his foot in... and did he have troubles thereafter! And did he win the woman of his heart? What a role for Jimmy Dunn! And what a two heart Claire Trevor makes in this Fox Comedy romance, with Jimmy singing "It's The Irish In Me" in fact "Jimmy and Sally" is his alricest, merriest role. It is showing at the Oriental.

"Night Birds"

Muriel Angelus, the lovely nineteen-year-old blonde, who made her film debut in a New Era production with Ruby Miller, plays the leading feminine role in Richard Eibenberg's "Night Birds," in which Jameson Thomas, Jack Raine and Eve Gray are also to be seen. For a long time film directors in this country ignored her, she worked "now and then," but never would they give her a part which would give her the big chance which is the turning point in every actress' career. When the silent film which was reduced to a minimum, Muriel Angelus accepted a contract from Calyton and Waller, which gave her tiny parts in their stage productions and allowed her to understudy second leads. Mr. Waller, however, realized that Muriel Angelus had a voice which needed cultivation. She had been studying singing seriously for some time, with the result that she has now a lovely voice which has gained for her this leading role in "Night Birds," now showing at the Alhambra Theatre.

LOCAL SHIPPING

SAFETY AT SEA AND LOAD LINE

Further legislation regarding merchant shipping in the Colony is forecast by the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, Attorney General, in the Objects and Reasons of a Bill to amend the Merchant Shipping Ordinance of 1929, which will be introduced at the next Legislative Council Meeting.

The amending Ordinance, which will be introduced by the Hon. Mr. Alabaster, also forecasts the early introduction of Part II of the Merchant Shipping (Safety and Load Line Conventions) Act of 1932, to the Colony, relating with Load Line and Loading.

This will be followed by the introduction of Part I of the Act, which deals with Safety of Life at Sea.

Hongkong Ordinance.

In exercise of these powers an Ordinance, now numbered as No. 10 of 1934, was passed by the Hongkong Legislature and has been amended by Ordinances Nos. 5 and 11 of 1931 and by Ordinance, No. 23 of 1932.

It deals with certificates of registry, certificates of competency, the engagement and discharge of seamen, boarding houses for seamen, distressed seamen, health and accommodation, discipline, surveys, general equipment, life saving appliances, deck and load lines, dangerous goods and explosives, grain cargoes, unseaworthy and unsafe ships, marine duties of masters, quarantine, fairways, safety of ships and prevention of accidents, removal of obstructions, moorings and buoys, fishing stations, police powers, light-house, lights and buoys, launches, motor-boats, river steamers, junks and native craft, offences and prosecution thereof, regulations and fees.

Such of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts as apply to the Colony and are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Ordinance are now repealed so far as they relate to ships registered in the Colony; but in all other respects the provisions of the said Acts are expressed to be in the Colony and extend to all ships registered in the Colony when such ships are within the waters of the Colony.

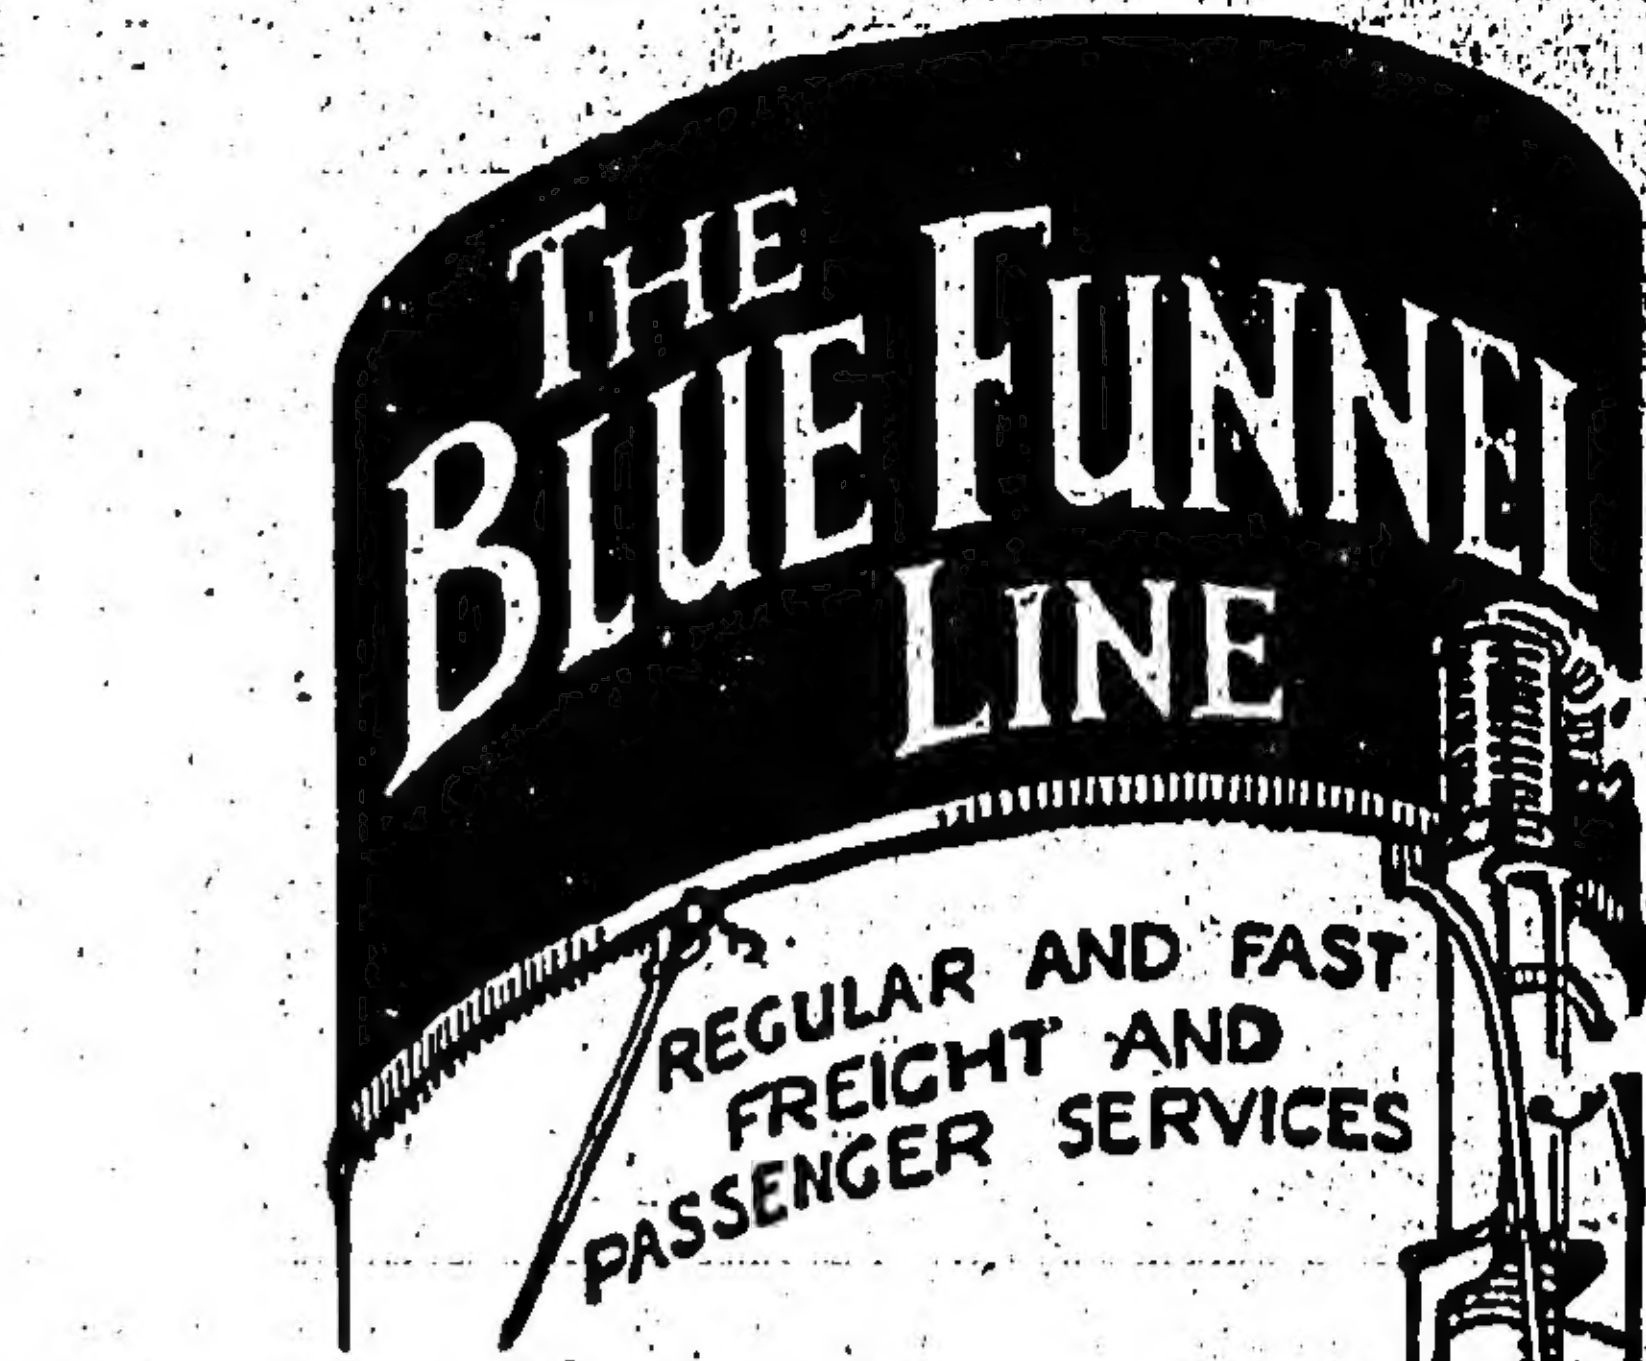

Safety at Sea.

On May 31, 1929, an International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea and, on July 5 1930, an International Load Line Convention were signed in London. To give effect to them, the Merchant Shipping (Safety and Load Line Conventions) Act, 1932, was brought into operation on January 1, 1933.

In 1931 the Governments of Ceylon, Hongkong, India, the Netherlands, the Netherlands East Indies, and the Straits Settlements, being satisfied that it would be impracticable to enforce compliance with the requirements of Chapters II and III of the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea, 1929, in the case of passenger ships engaged in the carriage of large numbers of unaccompanied passengers and other unaccompanied passengers to or from their countries and desiring to formulate general rules concerning Construction, Life Saving Appliances, etc., applicable to the particular circumstances of these trades appointed delegates, who formulated the Simla Rules, 1931.

Modifications.

Part I of the Merchant Shipping (Safety and Load Line Conventions) Act, 1932, deals with Safety at Sea and His Majesty, by Order in Council, direct that the provisions shall extend to any Colony, with such modifications as may be specified. Orders in Council under this section may direct that any provision of Part I of the Act, which is expressed to apply only to British ships or to British ships registered in the United Kingdom, shall apply to British ships or passenger steamers, as the case may be, registered in any country or part of His Majesty's dominions to which the provisions of Part I can be extended.

"STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

since she had the flu, and I'll be here such a short time—and I wanted to be sure to see Amy— She stopped, she was staring at something on the floor by the sofa, a rag doll sprawling abandonedly among some blocks. Her ease, her elegance deserted her. Those things must belong to her child. Her own child!

"I want to see—my baby—" she whispered, involuntarily.
(To Be Continued.)

Part II of the Act of 1932, deals with Load Line and Loading and His Majesty may, by Order in Council, make similar directions.

The extension of the provisions of the Act of 1932 to Hongkong by Order in Council will necessitate many exceptions, adaptations and modifications, and possibly also the repeal or amendment of some of the provisions of the local Ordinances.

It is understood that Part II of the Act, dealing with Load Line and Loading, will be extended to the Colony before Part I, dealing with Safety of Life at Sea, is so extended. The Amending Bill which will be introduced at the next meeting of Legislative Council has been prepared with a view to indicating the amendments in the principal Ordinance which are considered necessary when Part II of the Act is extended to the Colony.

When Part I of the Act, which relates to the extensions Safety of Life at Sea regulations, is extended to the Colony it will probably be necessary to repeal or amend other provisions in the local Ordinances as well as at Table A in the Schedule to that Ordinance.

THE MELBOURNE CENTENARY

BIG EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

Enrolment of members of the Centenary Eucharistic Congress which will commence on December 2nd, with Pontifical High Mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Melbourne, has now begun throughout Australia, New Zealand and the Pacific Islands.

The Congress will be truly representative of the Catholic Church under the Southern Cross and the appointment of his Eminence, Cardinal MacRory, as Papal Legate, has given it a status higher than that of any other National Eucharistic Congress. Cabled advice to His Grace, Archbishop Mannix, indicates that five Prelates will accompany Cardinal MacRory while all the Bishops of Australia, New Zealand and the Islands have promised their fullest co-operation and, in the majority of cases, propose to attend the Congress in person.

All Cardinals, Archbishops and Bishops throughout the British Empire and the United States of America have also been personally invited while a great number of the Catholic laity are also expected to visit Melbourne for the Congress. Negotiations are already on foot in New Zealand for the chartering of at least one pilgrim ship.

During the Congress week, which will close with the Eucharistic Procession through the city streets on December 9th, prominent ecclesiastics from abroad will join with leading Australian Archbishops and Bishops in addressing Sessions throughout Melbourne.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Protestant's Protest.

To the Editor,
Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir,—As a Protestant Christian, I desire to earnestly protest against the very un-protestant prayer uttered by the Bishop just before the benediction, at the United Open Air Service, when he prayed for the soul of Robert Morrison in real Roman fashion, praying that eternal peace might be his and that "eternal light might rest upon him. Can anyone imagine Robert Morrison ever praying such a prayer on behalf of a Christian brother who had already been "with Christ,"—"In the Father's house,"—"In heaven" for a hundred years?

When I heard of such prayers over the graves of Morrison at Macao and of the "blessing" of the graves of Dr. and Mrs. Morrison and their son, by the Bishop, I waited to see if any Christian protest might be given through the press, in which the report of the "blessing" was published.

Now, just no-one else shall do so, (although I am sure there are many who feel just as I do). I am constrained to send this brief note of protest to you for publication. You are free to give my name to anyone who may enquire, but I refrain from signing it for publication for the reason that readers might infer that one sought personal publicity.

PROTESTANT CHRISTIAN.

Films—British or Otherwise.

Sir,—Recently, there has been more than one complaint in the press about the age of the films sometimes displayed at the larger "first-run" cinemas of the Colony; there is one being shown to-day which is four years old.

Such as I dislike the over-abundance of regulations, with which this Colony is burdened, I suggest that it would be in the Public Interest if one were made, compelling all film advertisements to show prominently the year in which they were completed.

DEATH OF MR. J. T. VICTOR

PASSES AWAY IN HOSPITAL

We regret to have to record the death of Mr. Jose Thome Victor, a well-known member of the local Portuguese community; who passed away at the Canossa Hospital in the early hours of this morning, at the age of 50 years.

The late Mr. Victor recently underwent a successful operation for appendicitis, but bronchopneumonia later developed and to this disease he succumbed.

Education at Macao and at St. Joseph's College, Hongkong, the late Mr. Victor joined the Post Office and for some years worked in the registration department. He later resigned his post and joined the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation on the staff of which he served for some thirty years. He leaves a mother, widow, three sons, a brother in Shanghai and a sister in Singapore, with whom much sympathy will be felt in their bereavement.

The funeral takes place this evening, passing the Monument at 5.30 p.m.

It to be something else, the Law will, by prosecution of the vendor, protect the public, even tho' the prospective customer has an opportunity of examining the article before making a purchase.

I suggest that the owners of "first run" cinemas, by their advertising propaganda, etc., induce the public to believe that only first-rate, up-to-date films are shown. When old stuff is put on the programme, with no indication of date, so that the intending purchaser of amusement has no chance of withdrawing from the contract, as he does not see the object purchased until he has paid for it, then, I very strongly suggest, there is moral (if not legal) fraudulent intent, from which the public should be protected.

CHILDREN HURT

TWO CASUALTIES IN CARS' COLLISION

Two children were painfully injured in a motor accident which occurred at 4 p.m. yesterday on the Castle Peak Road, at the beach near the petrol station just beyond the Cafeteria.

Mr. George Ahwee, with his wife and three small children, in an Erskine sedan, was backing into the parking place when a loaded truck came around the corner from the direction of town.

Why the truck could not stop has not been explained, but the driver elected to turn right instead of left, with the result that instead of being carried over the sea wall, the two cars crashed into a tree.

The truck struck the sedan on the near side back wheel, smashing the wheel, crumpling the mudguard and shattering the window. Flying glass struck one of the children, a little girl aged six, inflicting painful cuts on the cheek and lip. Another child suffered a sprained wrist and a slight head injury.

Dr. J. P. Fehly was at the

These reports were later proved to be without foundation. It is now definitely settled that President von Hindenburg will be buried in the Field Marshal's Tower at the Tannenberg National Memorial. The Tower is to be converted into a crypt.—Reuter.
